BULLETS STOP TRIO TRYING TO ESCAPE; CONFISCATE TOOLS

Armed Men Entered Ervin Co. Office—Found No Safe

Three burglars who broke into the office of The Ervin Milling Co., Whiteman and Leaman Sts., at about 9 o'clock Sunday night with the intention of cracking a safe which they discovered did not exist, were trapped and arrested by police as they left the building.

The three men gave their names as Fred Thompson, 35, "home-at-large," formerly of Chicago, Ill.; and Lawrence J. Leiber, 32, and Robert Leiber, 16, brothers, both of Syracuse, N. Y.

Thompson and the older Leiber were charged with burglary and bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $2,000 each by Mayor John W. Prugh Monday morning. Thompson pleaded guilty and Leiber not guilty. In default of bond, they will remain in custody to await action of the grand jury.

The younger Leiber's case will probably be transferred to Juvenile court for disposition since he is a minor.

Mrs. Fred Ervin, whose husband is junior partner in the milling company with his father, C. H. Ervin, saw the three strangers prowling about the building and notified police. The Ervin family lives on Leaman St., near the grain elevator.

A squad of police was assigned to the case and the officers surrounded the building. Patrolmen Charles Thompson and George Robinson and O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, who was at Police Headquarters at the time, hurried to the mill in the police car while Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman followed on his motorcycle.

Shagin arrived at the moment the Leiber brothers, finding no safe in the building, were leaving the office. They ran around the building and the officer gave chase drawing his revolver.

Shagin fired over their heads and when the fugitives gave no sign of stopping, commanded them to halt, supplementing the order by firing once more in the air. They stopped.

Meanwhile, the other officers captured Thompson as he was about to follow his companions out of the building.

When arrested, revolvers were found in the possession of Thompson and the older Leiber. A .38 caliber revolver was taken from Leiber and a .25 caliber automatic, Spanish type, was discovered on Thompson. The men offered no resistance to arrest and did not make an effort to use the weapons.

Police also found a short crowbar, a sledge hammer, a mechanic's hammer, large size, a screw driver and a chisel. The trio admitted intending to use the tools in cracking a safe. The burglars, finding no safe in the office, had opened the cash register but discovered this, too, was empty. The office was not ransacked.

Under questioning by police Monday morning, Thompson admitted he possesses a criminal record but refused to go into details. He declared "poor discretion" had been used in entering the building so early in the evening. Entrance had been effected by prying open a window and forcing open the office door.

The older Leiber confessed, police say, that he served a sentence for third degree burglary in 1917 in the state penitentiary at Albany, N. Y.

The three were well dressed and apparently well educated. Lawrence Leiber declared he is married and has three children, the oldest 7 and the youngest 3. He said he had been regularly sending money to his wife in Syracuse.

Police learned that Thompson and the older Leiber are ex-service men, having served four years overseas during the World War. They served with the Canadian forces from 1915 to 1917 and with the American forces from 1917 to 1919.

Thompson was wounded twice in the fighting. He was shot in the leg once and also lost a toe.

The three had been traveling about the country together since the home of the Leiber family was broken up by the death of their mother three or four months ago, they said. The Leibers said their father, Thomas, is a painter in Syracuse and that another brother, Edward, operates a hotel in that city.

Police expected to take the prisoners to Dayton Monday afternoon to have their Bertillion measurements, photographs and fingerprints taken.

COAL OPERATOR DIES

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—Funeral services for John McMillen, 69, operator of coal mines at Nelsonville, will be held here Wednesday. McMillen died here yesterday morning from uremic poisoning following a three day's illness.

SEEK "DOCTOR"

Although the police have announced they have not the slightest "legal evidence" against any person in connection with the murder of Miss Margaret Brown, governess, whose flaming body was found beside a road at Bernardsville, N. J., they have admitted they are seeking Louis Clements, a Dane, for questioning. This photo shows Clements who used the title "Dr." when he first came to public notice in New York City ten years ago.

WOMAN SUCCUMBS TO HEART TROUBLE AS POLICE RAID HOME

Mrs. Minnie Cummings Dies—Son Held By Police

Mrs. Minnie Cummings, 60, 252 Bellbrock Ave., died at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night from heart trouble half an hour after collapsing when police had raided her home in search of liquor.

Price Cummings, 32, her son, was placed under arrest on a charge of possessing liquor but was released under $250 appearance bond. His case will not be disposed of until after funeral services are held for his mother.

The raid was conducted by Patrolman George Robinson, Sub-Patrolman Jesse Dorton and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, who were armed with a search warrant.

Dorton went to the rear door while the other two officers attempted to enter the front door, only to find it locked.

The trio then entered the back door. A search of the premises revealed a half pint of liquor, a quantity of empty bottles and smashed cans in crates.

Mrs. Cummings was later discovered lying on a davenport in an adjoining room. She had fainted during the excitement.

Police learned of her condition later and sent Drs. A. D. DeHaven and C. G. McPherson to the residence, but death had already taken place.

Her son told police that his mother had been suffering from heart trouble for about two years and had been ill for the last two weeks. The raiding officers did not display revolvers at any time during the course of the raid, which was conducted in a quiet manner, they said.

"MR. ZERO" TO SELL JOBLESS

NEW YORK, March 5. — "How much am I offered for an able-bodied janitor?"

This and similar questions will be asked on Wednesday by Urbain Ledoux, champion of the unemployed, when he begins auctioning men at "The Tub," his free meal restaurant here. Ledoux, more widely known as "Mr. Zero," will offer jobless, healthy men to the highest bidders as "slaves" in an effort to relieve the unemployment situation.

Many of the disciples of Ledoux are eager to sell themselves into "bondage" to obtain food and shelter.

PHYSICIAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

PINEVILLE, Ky., March 5.—Dr. J. W. Morgan, Toledo, is dead, and his three companions are in a serious condition here today as the result of an automobile accident near here yesterday. Dr. Morgan was instantly killed when the auto he was driving went over a fifty-foot embankment. The injured are: Miss Bertha Bloodheart, a nurse in Dr. Morgan's hospital, eGorge Allison, Wauseon, and Mrs. Minnie Blue, Perrysburg. The four were enroute to Florida, it was reported.

WRIGHT DEMANDS MUSEUM PROBE

INVENTOR OF PLANE ASKS SMITHSONIAN TO RECALL CLAIMS

Thinks Institute Should Be Probed By Scientists

DAYTON, O., March 5. — The controversy between Orville Wright and the Smithsonian Institute of Washington, D. C., re-opened here today when Orville Wright asked for a thorough investigation of the "conduct of the great national museum" by a scientific body.

The difference between Wright and the Smithsonian Institute began several years ago when Orville Wright refused to allow the original of the Wright brothers first flying machine to be exhibited by the Washington museum. This refusal was based on the assertion of the museum that the Langley plane on exhibit there, was the first heavier than air plane to make a successful flight.

Wright's demand for an investigation, followed a statement issued Saturday at Washington, by Dr. C. G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute in which he agreed to credit the Wright ship with being the first heavier than air machine capable of suustained flight.

Wright's reply to Abbot's proposal follows:

"Dr. Abbot's proposal to change the label on the Langley machine in the Smithsonian Institution would correct only one out of the many statements put out by the Smithsonian Institution, to which I have raised objection. In the reports and other Smithsonian publications from year to year have appeared many statements such as these: 'The tests thus far made have shown that the late Secretary Langley had succeeded in building the first aeroplane capable of sustained free flight with a man.'

"The statement on the label is less objectionable than many of these, and is seen only by those visiting the museum, while the statements in the publications are seen by thousands all over the world. Changing the label will not correct these other false statements.

"The Smithsonian has the privilege of believing whatever it chooses about the ability of the original Langley machine to fly, but it has no right to publish incorrect and misleading statements which may lead others to form incorrect opinions. Nor has it the right to print and send out this propaganda at government expense. But if the Smithsonian honestly believes that the original Langley machine could fly, why did it make the many changes in the design of the machine which added to the cost of the tests.

"I have asked for an investigation, by some competent and impartial body, of the various charges I have made against the conduct of the Smithsonian institution. If the charges I have made are not true, it should be known; if they are true, that also should be known, so that credit may go where it belongs.

"Matters of this kind can not be settled through discussion in the newspapers, when one party answers the other by talking on points other than the one in controversy. The two sides must be brought together where there can be no dodging of the issue."

YEGGS ESCAPE WITH $1,000 AND LOOT

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 5.—Authorities here today were searching for the safe-blowers who early Sunday entered the Sulzbacher department store here and obtained about $1,000 in cash by dynamiting a large safe. The yeggs also carried away merchandise valued at $2,000.

PLAN INQUEST IN DEATHS OF AMERICANS KILLED ON BORDER

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 5.—An inquest will be held at Tia Juana, Mex., over the bodies of the four Americans, who were slain in a desperate battle after escaping from a jail in Ensenada, according to reports reaching here today.

Despite the strict censorship which has been clamped down along the border, reports trickled through that the bodies of the four Americans had been taken to Tia Juana and placed in the municipal coroner's office there and that Mexican officials planned an investigation into the armed encounters which resulted in their death.

The four pail breakers, said to be deserters from the United States army, who were killed in the fray, were: Lawrence N. Thompson, Elton E. Morehouse, Russell E. Tanner and E. E. Kirby.

The battle occurred when a company of Mexican rurales overtook the Americans as they were making a dash for the boundary. Convicted in a Mexican court of highway robbery, the four men were in the Ensenada jail, awaiting transfer to the Mexican penal colony at Tres Marias, when they escaped from the prison.

CONFESSED MURDERER OF TWO SONS SAVED FROM ENRAGED MOB

George A. Chisholm Removed To Cell In Indiana Harbor, Ind., And Guarded From Opportunity To Commit Suicide

INDIANA HABOR, Ind., March 5—George A. Chisholm, confessed slayer of his two young sons, was confined today in a barren cell at the Indiana Harbor jail. The cell is without furnishings of any kind to keep the prisoner from carrying out his threat of self destruction.

The change in cells was ordered last night by police captain Edward Knight after Chisholm had attempted to take his own life by piercing his jugular vein with the prong of a belt buckle. Captain Knight also ordered two guards posted at the cell door to keep a continuous watch upon the prisoner.

This was Chisholm's second narrow escape from death. The first came Saturday at the hands of a mob which surrounded the East Chicago, Ind., jail, soon after Chisholm had confessed that he had induced his sons, George, 9, and Edgar, 7, to wrap themselves with wire and jump into the ship canal, to their deaths, on the promise that they were going to visit their grandmother in Canada.

This confession was later revised in which Chisholm admitted he "pushed" the boys into the canal. He stated as his motive that he had "too many mouths to feed."

The first body was found floating in the ship canal at Indiana Harbor on February 22; the second came to the surface and was recovered last Thursday. Saturday morning, Chisholm, a 36-year-old foundry worker at East Chicago, and Canadian World War veteran, was arrested and accused of the murders. After several hours grilling, he confessed.

As soon as the news spread, a mob formed around the East Chicago jail and demanded the prisoner. As the mob was being organized to storm the lockup, Chisholm was smuggled through a rear door and rushed to the Indiana Harbor Jail.

Mrs. Helen Lawrence, mother of three children and Chisholm's "housekeeper," is also being held in connection with the crime. In his revised confession, Chisholm declared Mrs. Lawrence's nagging about his children drove him into murdering them, but he denied that she had any connection with the crime or even knew of its execution.

LINDBERGH ENJOYS PEACEFUL VISIT IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Flyer Expected To Leave Tuesday For St. Louis

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Here for a quiet visit enroute to St. Louis, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh kept in seclusion again today. He expressed a wish to be left alone to enjoy life as a private citizen.

The exact time for his departure has been closely guarded but he is not expected to hop off before tomorrow morning.

Officials at Bolling field said that his plane is ready to be cranked up and take the air at a moment's notice.

Mechanics wheeled the plane out of the hangar at one this morning but Lindbergh sent word to the field that he had changed his mind about hopping off. The plane was returned to the hangar.

One of the objects of Lindbergh's visit here was to assist Trubee Davison, air secretary of the war department, and Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, in preparing plans for their flight to Panama. Davison and Fechet had planned to get away today but postponed the trip for a week or ten days in order to be here for conferences on the war department appropriation bill. Lindbergh has given them valuable information about flying fields and landing fields in Mexico and Central America.

Lindbergh's only public appearance thus far was at Bolling field yesterday when he took up a number of government officials in Fechet's big transport plane.

ADDITIONAL MAIL THEFT LOOT TAKEN FROM RELATIVE OF BANDIT

CHICAGO, March 5—Additional loot to the amount of $15,870 taken in the $133,000 Grand Trunk mail robbery here ten days ago was in the hands of postal authorities today, following a surprise raid on the home of a relative of William Donovan, one of the men indicted as a ringleader of the bandit gang.

The money, all in currency, was found in an old rocking chair in a woodshed in the rear of a home occupied by Miss Mary Hoffman, who is a sister of Mrs. William Donovan.

It brings the total of the loot recovered to $83,005, investigators having previously located $17,125 in the home of Charles Cleaver, also under indictment as one of the bandits. Practically $100,000 is still unaccounted for.

When police called at her home, Miss Hoffman voluntarily led them to the cache. The money was in a sealed envelope. She said Donovan and his wife called on her the day of the robbery, and she was handed the package "for safe keeping."

The woman denied knowledge of its contents, but said she became suspicious when she read accounts of the holdup. She was turned over to federal authorities for further questioning.

FIVE KILLED IN AIR CRASH

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 5. — Authorities here today began an inquiry into the cause of the airplane crash which cost the lives of five men yesterday.

The plane, piloted by its builder, W. W. Bird, was soaring above Mahoney flying field here at an altitude of 300 feet when it suddenly took a nose dive and plunged to earth.

The four passengers, Ralph Craig, Clifford Dill, Chester K. Kidwell and Irvin Thomas, were instantly killed, while the pilot died a few minutes after the crash.

CANTON MAN FIGHTS OFF ARMED HOLD-UP

DETROIT, March 5.—Two men, said to have wounded and robbed Ernest Perkins, of Canton, Ohio, in a blind pig last night were arrested today.

Perkins and two "friends" he met at a boarding house at 536 West Fort Street went to a blind pig at 5766 Brush Street. They were accompanied by two other men.

During the party, one of the men drew a gun and staged a hold-up of the others. Perkins resisted and succeeded in downing the robber, but in the struggle he was shot through the hand.

LEBRIX AND COSTES LAND IN DETROIT

DETROIT, March 5.— The intrepid French fliers, Lieutenant-Commander Joseph Lebrix and Captain Dieudonne Costes, are the guests of Detroit today after a surprise landing at Ford airport yesterday in their trip around the world.

They plan to leave tomorrow in their remarkable plane, the "Nungesser-Colin" for Chicago, and thence to San Francisco, where they will sail for Tokio to resume their flight to Paris.

FIRE RECALLS TORNADO DISASTER

A view of firemen fighting flames sweeping through Broadway, Lorain, O., destroying and damaging buildings in the business area to the extent of $500,000. The conflagration recalls the tornado disaster which struck the city in June, 1924. Photo below shows the same street immediately following the 1924 disaster, with buildings ripped apart and wreckage piled high.

SENATOR WALSH CANDIDACY MAY PROMISE BATTLE AT HOUSTON

Dry Solon Expects McAdoo Support To Give Him California Delegates—May Damage Chances Of Smith

WASHINGTON, March 5.— The open candidacy of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the senate's famous "oil prosecutor," for the Democratic presidential nomination in opposition to Governor Al Smith, of New York, and Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, today threatened to project a sharp Democratic row at the Houston convention.

Walsh threw his hat into the Democratic ring with an announcement broadly declared that Wm. G. McAdoo was behind his candidacy. That caused little surprise in Washington but it was looked upon as certain to provoke a bitter fight between Walsh and Smith forces.

The effect on Reed's candidacy was problematical. One group of Capital Hill politicians felt that Reed might emerge the winner if Smith, failing to win the nomination, concentrated his strength on depriving Walsh of victory. Under such circumstances, it was said, Reed might win as a compromise between the two. Other Democratic leaders, however, thought an active campaign by Walsh would create such a deadlock that all three would be eliminated before Houston named a Democratic standard bearer.

It was generally believed here that Walsh's entry would make Smith's fight for the nomination far more difficult than with Reed as his only prominent antagonist.

Among "the dark horses" mentioned here as likely to benefit from a three corner deadlock at Houston were Owen D. Young, of New York, former American reparations commission, Governor Vic Donahey of Ohio, and Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas. Any one of the three might win, it was said, if Smith, Reed and Walsh eliminated the other.

DISCOVER VITAMIN "F"; SCIENTISTS VISUALIZE EFFECT

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Isolation of another vitamin—"F"—by Dr. Hubert M. Evas, internationally known physiologist, is one more step in the fairy-land like emancipation of mankind from disease and physical deficiencies that are responsible for so much of the world's trouble.

Despite absence of technical data relative to Evans' discovery, both private and governmental scientists here today expressed the belief that the new contribution to the vitamins must be related both to vitamin B—of anti-neurotic and growth-promoting properties, and to vitamin E, the reproductive factor in nutrition.

Dr. Thomas Cajigas, pathologist at George Washington University, called attention to the fascinating possibilities in the synthetic produc-

SPEAK-EASY OWNER KILLED BY GUNMEN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 5 — A Pennsylvania automobile license was the only clue afforded to detectives searching for four gunmen who murdered Jerry Daniels, former night club associate of Evelyn Nesbit, in his speak-easy here last night. The gunmen surprised Daniels while he was in the company of a blonde woman, picked a quarrel with him and killed him with a volley of shots.

A bystander told police that the last three figures of the license plate of the murderers' automobile, in which they escaped, were "308."

HELD FOR MURDER

IRONTON, O., March 5—Cecil Purnell, 35, kin of the late "King Ben" Purnell, today was bound to the Lawrence County Grand Jury on a charge of murder. Purnell was arrested late Saturday after an alleged street fight which resulted in the death of Raymond Adams, 30. Adams was shot six times. Authorities report that Purnell declared he shot in self defense.

HAMMER-SLAYER IS FERFECTLY CALM AS ORDEAL DRAWS NEAR

Denies She's "Hard-Boiled"; Sheriff Tells Theory

By JAMES J. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PAINESVILLE, O., March 5.—Her nerves seemingly under perfect control and maintaining the stoicism of a fatalist, Velma West, the twenty-one year old flapper, who confessed to beating her husband T. Edward West, to death with a hammer in their honeymoon bungalow, goes on trial here today charged with first degree murder.

"I'm ready for the ordeal," she quietly told this writer in her cell in Lake County jail in the first interview she has granted.

It lasted one hour and fifteen minutes, during which she said, among other things, that she certainly was not a sophisticated, hard-boiled flapper, that she had tried hard to settle down in the small town of Perry and be a real housewife, that she "had dreamed of babies" and that she is now "sorry" the quarrel flared up that resulted in her slugging her husband with the hammer.

She was perfectly self-possessed. Not once did she ask for a cigarette and she enjoys her "fags." Even the self-reliant Ruth Snyder, the sashweight slayer of another home-loving husband, never displayed more self-assurance than does this other younger blonde defendant enmeshed in an equally appalling crime of the "jazz age."

And while Velma was steeling herself for her fight to escape the electric chair, new and startling evidence had just been dug up against her. Sheriff Edward T. Rasmussen showed International News Service a copy of a four-page typewritten statement signed by Miss Mabel Young, a Cleveland stenographer only a year or two out of high school, which in the opinion of the sheriff, reveals the motive for the crime.

"Velma's intense desire to break the shackles of married life and get away from her husband to do what she wished was the motive for the slaying," said the sheriff, who had just grilled Miss Young at length and who three months ago exacted the confession from Velma that she had killed her husband in "a blind rage." The sheriff, who has taken the leading part in digging up evidence against Velma, declared that a warm friendship existed between Velma and Mabel since last July.

It was to Miss Young's home at 2111 Willowdale Avenue, Cleveland, that Velma dashed in her green roadster immediately after she had battered her husband to death in the bedroom of their home in Perry. It was a thirty-five mile run from Perry to Cleveland. The murder was committed at about six p. m. on the evening of December 6 last and that night Velma played bridge at Miss Young's home at an all-girl party, comprising mostly

BILL WOULD HONOR HEROES OF PEACE

WASHINGTON, March 5—Pensions for the heroes of peace as well as those of war were proposed in a bill placed before the house today by Rep. Wainwright (R) of New York.

Authority is conferred in the bill upon the regents of the Smithsonian Institution to investigate all cases of citizens employed by the government "who through voluntary risk of life and health shall have rendered conspicuous service to the people of the country."

Results of the investigation with recommendations for pensions would be laid before congress.

Specific grants of $250 a month to each of twenty-two soldiers or their widows who braved death in the early investigations of yellow fever in Cuba are included in the bill.

ANTI-MUSSOLINI DEMONSTRATIONS

VIENNA, March 5.—Anti-Mussolini demonstrations took on a serious aspect here today.

Two Austrian war veterans were seriously wounded when the police clashed with a mob of Austrian fascists which threatened damage to the Italian embassy. The police, mounted on horses, were forced to charge the infuriated citizens to disperse them.

SHOT BY FATHER-IN-LAW

NEWARK, O., March 5.—Dalton Meyers, 25, was in a serious condition here today suffering from bullet wounds said to have been inflicted by his father-in-law, Frank Dell. Dell is being held in city prison for investigation. The shooting occurred yesterday morning. Meyers was shot twice, the first bullet grazing his cheek and the second entering his side.

In the reports and other Smithsonian publications from year to year have appeared many statements such as these: 'The tests thus far made have shown that the late Secretary Langley had succeeded in building the first aeroplane capable of sustained free flight with a man.'

"The statement on the label is less objectionable than many of these, and is seen only by those visiting the museum, while the statements in the publications are seen by thousands all over the world. Changing the label will not correct these other false statements.

"The Smithsonian has the privilege of believing whatever it chooses about the ability of the original Langley machine to fly, but it has no right to publish incorrect and misleading statements which may lead others to form incorrect opinions. Nor has it the right to print and send out this propaganda at government expense. But if the Smithsonian honestly believes that the original Langley machine could fly, why did it make the many changes in the design of the machine which added to the cost of the tests.

"I have asked for an investigation, by some competent and impartial body, of the various charges I have made against the conduct of the Smithsonian institution. If the charges I have made are not true, it should be known; if they are true, that also should be known, so that credit may go where it belongs.

"Matters of this kind can not be settled through discussion in the newspapers, when one party answers the other by talking on points other than the one in controversy. The two sides must be brought together where there can be no dodging of the issue."

YEGGS ESCAPE WITH $1,000 AND LOOT

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 5.—Authorities here today were searching for the safe-blowers who early Sunday entered the Sulzbacher department store here and obtained about $1,000 in cash by dynamiting a large safe. The yeggs also carried away merchandise valued at $2,000.

PLAN INQUEST IN DEATHS OF AMERICANS KILLED ON BORDER

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 5.—An inquest will be held at Tia Juana, Mex., over the bodies of the four Americans, who were slain in a desperate battle after escaping from a jail in Ensenada, according to reports reaching here today.

Despite the strict censorship which has been clamped down along the border, reports trickled through that the bodies of the four Americans had been taken to Tia Juana and placed in the municipal coroner's office there and that Mexican officials planned an investigation into the armed encounters which resulted in their death.

The four pail breakers, said to be deserters from the United States army, who were killed in the fray, were: Lawrence N. Thompson, Elton E. Morehouse, Russell E. Tanner and E. E. Kirby.

The battle occurred when a company of Mexican rurales overtook the Americans as they were making a dash for the boundary. Convicted in a Mexican court of highway robbery, the four men were in the Ensenada jail, awaiting transfer to the Mexican penal colony at Treg Marias, when they escaped from the prison.

CONFESSED MURDERER OF TWO SONS SAVED FROM ENRAGED MOB

George A. Chisholm Removed To Cell In Indiana Harbor, Ind., And Guarded From Opportunity To Commit Suicide

INDIANA HABOR, Ind., March 5—George A. Chisholm, confessed slayer of his two young sons, was confined today in a barren cell at the Indiana Harbor jail. The cell is without furnishings of any kind to keep the prisoner from carrying out his threat of self destruction.

The change in cells was ordered last night by police captain. Edward Knight after Chisholm had attempted to take his own life by piercing his jugular vein with the prong of a belt buckle. Captain Knight also ordered two guards posted at the cell door to keep a continuous watch upon the prisoner.

This was Chisholm's second narrow escape from death. The first came Saturday at the hands of a mob which surrounded the East Chicago, Ind., jail, soon after Chisholm had confessed that he had induced his sons, George, 9, and Edgar, 7, to wrap themselves with wire and jump into the ship canal, to their deaths, on the promise that they were going to visit their grandmother in Canada.

This confession was later revised in which Chisholm admitted he "pushed" the boys into the canal. He stated as his motive that he had "too many mouths to feed."

The first body was found floating in the ship canal at Indiana Harbor on February 22; the second came to the surface and was recovered last Thursday. Saturday morning, Chisholm, a 36-year-old foundry worker at East Chicago, and Canadian World War veteran, was arrested and accused of the murders. After several hours grilling, he confessed.

As soon as the news spread, a mob formed around the East Chicago jail and demanded the prisoner. As the mob was being organized to storm the lockup, Chisholm was smuggled through a rear door and rushed to the Indiana Harbor Jail.

Mrs. Helen Lawrence, mother of three children and Chisholm's "housekeeper," is also being held in connection with the crime. In his revised confession, Chisholm declared Mrs. Lawrence's nagging about his children drove him into murdering them, but he denied that she had any connection with the crime or even knew of its execution.

LINDBERGH ENJOYS PEACEFUL VISIT IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Flyer Expected To Leave Tuesday For St. Louis

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Here for a quiet visit enroute to St. Louis, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh kept in seclusion again today. He expressed a wish to be left alone to enjoy life as a private citizen.

The exact time for his departure has been closely guarded but he is not expected to hop off before tomorrow morning.

Officials at Bolling field said that his plane is ready to be cranked up and take the air at a moment's notice.

Mechanics wheeled the plane out of the hangar at one this morning but Lindbergh sent word to the field that he had changed his mind about hopping off. The plane was returned to the hangar.

One of the objects of Lindbergh's visit here was to assist Trubee Davison, air secretary of the war department, and Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, in preparing plans for their flight to Panama. Davison and Fechet had planned to get away today but postponed the trip for a week or ten days in order to be here for conferences on the war department appropriation bill. Lindbergh has given them valuable information about flying fields and landing fields in Mexico and Central America.

Lindbergh's only public appearance thus far was at Bolling field yesterday when he took up a number of government officials in Fechet's big transport plane.

ADDITIONAL MAIL THEFT LOOT TAKEN FROM RELATIVE OF BANDIT

CHICAGO, March 5—Additional loot to the amount of $15,870 taken in the $133,000 Grand Trunk mail robbery here ten days ago was in the hands of postal authorities today, following a surprise raid on the home of a relative of William Donovan, one of the men indicted as a ringleader of the bandit gang.

The money, all in currency, was found in an old rocking chair in a woodshed in the rear of a home occupied by Miss Mary Hoffman, who is a sister of Mrs. William Donovan.

It brings the total of the loot recovered to $33,005, investigators having previously located $17,125 in the home of Charles Cleaver, also under indictment as one of the bandits. Practically $100,000 is still unaccounted for.

When police called at her home, Miss Hoffman voluntarily led them to the cache. The money was in a sealed envelope. She said Donovan and his wife called on her the day of the robbery, and she was handed the package "for safe keeping."

The woman denied knowledge of its contents, but said she became suspicious when she read accounts of the holdup. She was turned over to federal authorities for further questioning.

FIVE KILLED IN AIR CRASH

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 5. — Authorities here today began an inquiry into the cause of the airplane crash which cost the lives of five men yesterday.

The plane, piloted by its builder, W. W. Bird, was soaring above Mahoney flying field here at an altitude of 300 feet when it suddenly took a nose dive and plunged to earth.

The four passengers, Ralph Craig, Clifford Dill, Chester K. Kidwell and Irvin Thomas, were instantly killed, while the pilot died a few minutes after the crash.

CANTON MAN FIGHTS OFF ARMED HOLD-UP

DETROIT, March 5.—Two men, said to have wounded and robbed Ernest Perkins, of Canton, Ohio, in a blind pig last night were arrested today.

Perkins and two "friends" he met at a boarding house at 536 West Fort Street went to a blind pig at 5766 Brush Street. They were accompanied by two other men.

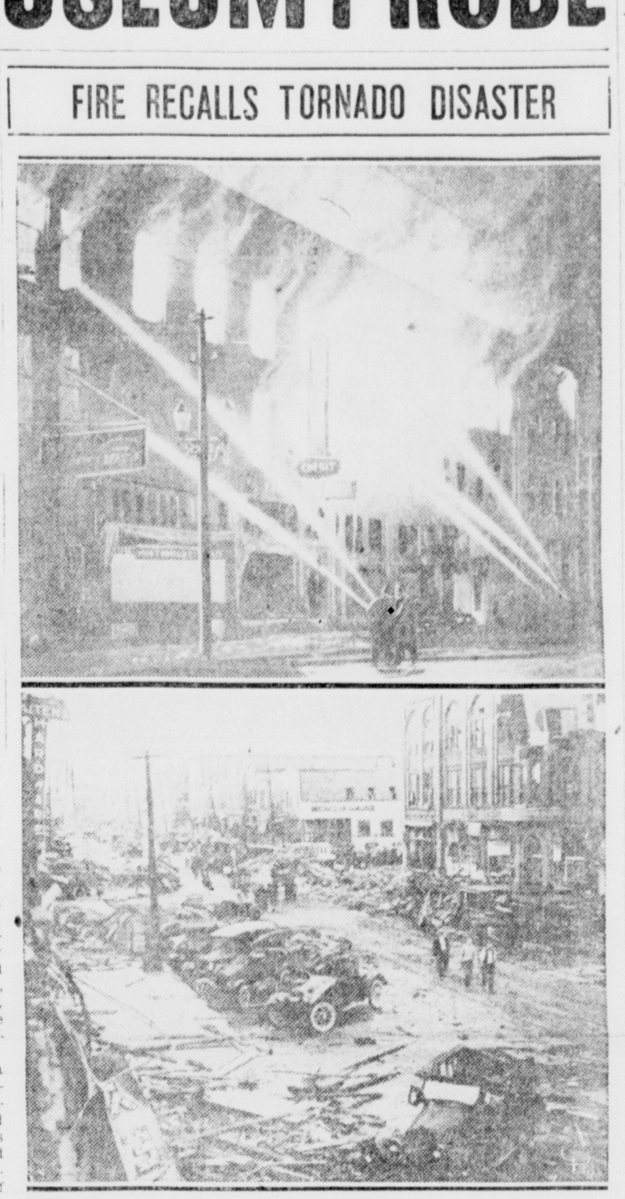

During the party, one of the men drew a gun and staged a hold-up of the others. Perkins resisted and succeeded in downing the robber, but in the struggle he was shot through the hand.

LEBRIX AND COSTES LAND IN DETROIT

DETROIT, March 5.— The intrepid French fliers, Lieutenant-Commander Joseph Lebrix and Captain Dieudonne Costes, are the guests of Detroit today after a surprise landing at Ford airport yesterday in their trip around the world.

They plan to leave tomorrow in their remarkable plane, the "Nungesser-Colin" for Chicago, and thence to San Francisco, where they will sail for Tokio to resume their flight to Paris.

FIRE RECALLS TORNADO DISASTER

A view of firemen fighting flames sweeping through Broadway, Lorain, O., destroying and damaging buildings in the business area to the extent of $500,000. The conflagration recalls the tornado disaster which struck the city in June, 1924. Photo below shows the same street immediately following the 1924 disaster, with buildings ripped apart and wreckage piled high.

SENATOR WALSH CANDIDACY MAY PROMISE BATTLE AT HOUSTON

Dry Solon Expects McAdoo Support To Give Him California Delegates—May Damage Chances Of Smith

WASHINGTON, March 5.— The open candidacy of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the senate's famous "oil prosecutor," for the Democratic presidential nomination in opposition to Governor Al Smith, of New York, and Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, today threatened to project a sharp Democratic row at the Houston convention.

Walsh threw his hat into the Democratic ring with an announcement broadly declared that Wm. G. McAdoo was behind his candidacy. That caused little surprise in Washington but it was looked upon as certain to provoke a bitter fight between Walsh and Smith forces.

The effect on Reed's candidacy was problematical. One group of Capital Hill politicians felt that Reed might emerge the winner if Smith, failing to win the nomination, concentrated his strength on depriving Walsh of victory. Under such circumstances, it was said, Reed might win as a compromise between the two. Other Democratic leaders, however, thought an active campaign by Walsh would create such a deadlock that all three would be eliminated before Houston named a Democratic standard bearer.

It was generally believed here that Walsh's entry would make Smith's fight for the nomination far more difficult than with Reed as his only prominent antagonist.

Among "the dark horses" mentioned here as likely to benefit from a three corner deadlock at Houston were Owen D. Young, of New York, former American reparations commission, Governor Vic Donahey of Ohio, and Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas. Any one of the three might win, it was said, if Smith, Reed and Walsh eliminated the other.

DISCOVER VITAMIN "F"; SCIENTISTS VISUALIZE EFFECT

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Isolation of another vitamin—"F"—by Dr. Hubert M. Evas, internationally known physiologist, is one more step in the fairy-land like emancipation of mankind from disease and physical deficiencies that are responsible for so much of the world's trouble.

Despite absence of technical data relative to Evans' discovery, both private and governmental scientists here today expressed the belief that the new contribution to the vitamins must be related both to vitamin B—of anti-neurotic and growth-promoting properties, and to vitamin E, the reproductive factor in nutrition.

Dr. Thomas Cajigas, pathologist at George Washington University, called attention to the fascinating possibilities in the synthetic produc-

SPEAK-EASY OWNER KILLED BY GUNMEN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 5 — A Pennsylvania automobile license was the only clue afforded to detectives searching for four gunmen who murdered Jerry Daniels, former night club associate of Evelyn Nesbit, in his speak-easy here last night. The gunmen surprised Daniels while he was in the company of a blonde woman, picked a quarrel with him and killed him with a volley of shots.

A bystander told police that the last three figures of the license plate of the murderers' automobile, in which they escaped, were "308."

HELD FOR MURDER

IRONTON, O., March 5—Cecil Purnell, 35, kin of the late "King Ben" Purnell, today was bound to the Lawrence County Grand Jury on a charge of murder. Purnell was arrested late Saturday after an alleged street fight which resulted in the death of Raymond Adams, 30. Adams was shot six times. Authorities report that Purnell declared he shot in self defense.

HAMMER-SLAYER IS FERFECTLY CALM AS ORDEAL DRAWS NEAR

Denies She's "Hard-Boiled"; Sheriff Tells Theory

By JAMES J. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PAINESVILLE, O., March 5.—Her nerves seemingly under perfect control and maintaining the stoicism of a fatalist, Velma West, tne twenty-one year old flapper, who confessed to beating her husband T. Edward West, to death with a hammer in their honeymoon bungalow, goes on trial here today charged with first degree murder.

"I'm ready for the ordeal," she quietly told this writer in her cell in Lake County jail in the first interview she has granted.

It lasted one hour and fifteen minutes, during which she said, among other things, that she certainly was not a sophisticated, hard-boiled flapper, that she had tried hard to settle down in the small town of Perry and be a real housewife, that she "had dreamed of babies" and that she is now "sorry" the quarrel flared up that resulted in her slugging her husband with the hammer.

She was perfectly self-possessed. Not once did she ask for a cigarette and she enjoys her "fags." Even the self-reliant Ruth Snyder, the sashweight slayer of another home-loving husband, never displayed more self-assurance than does this other younger blonde defendant enmeshed in an equally appalling crime of the "jazz age."

And while Velma was steeling herself for her fight to escape the electric chair, new and startling evidence had just been dug up against her. Sheriff Edward T. Rasmussen showed International News Service a copy of a four-page typewritten statement signed by Miss Mabel Young, a Cleveland stenographer only a year or two out of high school, which in the opinion of the sheriff, reveals the motive for the crime.

"Velma's intense desire to break the shackles of married life and get away from her husband to do what she wished was the motive for the slaying," said the sheriff, who had just grilled Miss Young at length and who three months ago exacted the confession from Velma that she had killed her husband in "a blind rage." The sheriff, who has taken the leading part in digging up evidence against Velma, declared that a warm friendship existed between Velma and Mabel since last July.

It was to Miss Young's home at 2111 Willowdale Avenue, Cleveland, that Velma dashed in her green roadster immediately after she had battered her husband to death in the bedroom of their home in Perry. It was a thirty-five mile run from Perry to Cleveland. The murder was committed at about six p. m. on the evening of December 6 last and that night Velma played bridge at Miss Young's home at an all-girl party, comprising mostly

BILL WOULD HONOR HEROES OF PEACE

WASHINGTON, March 5—Pensions for the heroes of peace as well as those of war were proposed in a bill placed before the house today by Rep. Wainwright (R) of New York.

Authority is conferred in the bill upon the regents of the Smithsonian Institution to investigate all cases of citizens employed by the government "who through voluntary risk of life and health shall have rendered conspicuous service to the people of the country."

Results of the investigation with recommendations for pensions would be laid before congress.

Specific grants of $250 a month to each of twenty-two soldiers or their widows who braved death in the early investigations of yellow fever in Cuba are included in the bill.

ANTI-MUSSOLINI DEMONSTRATIONS

VIENNA, March 5.—Anti-Mussolini demonstrations took on a serious aspect here today.

Two Austrian war veterans were seriously wounded when the police clashed with a mob of Austrian fascists which threatened damage to the Italian embassy. The police, mounted on horses, were forced to charge the infuriated citizens to disperse them.

SHOT BY FATHER-IN-LAW

NEWARK, O., March 5.—Dalton Meyers, 25, was in a serious condition here today suffering from bullet wounds said to have been inflicted by his father-in-law, Frank Dell. Dell is being held in city prison for investigation. The shooting occurred yesterday morning. Meyers was shot twice, the first bullet grazing his cheek and the second entering his side.

JACK and JILL

A MODERN STORY OF LOVE AND ROMANCE

By CLIFFORD WEBB, AUTHOR of "BROKEN THREADS" "TWIN LOVES" "THE SOB SISTER" ETC.

© 1928 THE CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, is kidnaped by auto bandits, but is rescued by Jack Stuart, who takes her home, and remains to win her hand in marriage.

Three wonderfully happy years of married life are alloted Jack and Jill. At their expiration the young couple find themselves the proud parents of twin boys and a girl. Then the Big Event transpires.

Stuart and Tony Justin are paid $100,000 for an interest in their tungsten mine by Pat Sweeney, father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike."

Easy Money! But instead of joy, it seems to bring only distrust and misery to the Stuarts, and is the cause of repeated quarrels.

Nita Ravelle, a gay divorcee, and Professor Le Tarte, a dancing man, come to town, each with separate identities. They infringe on the domestic tranquility of Jack and Jill. Later reconciliation smooths relations, and for a time all is well.

Nita Ravelle intrigues Jack's presence with her at a gambling and dancing resort, and induces Le Tarte to scheme Jill's presence, that the wife may witness Jack's seeming inconstancy. Jill goes, together with Mike and Le Tarte. There, glancing toward a table, she encounters Nita's insolent eyes, and with the woman is her Jack.

(Now Go On With The Story)

"Oh, Jill—you lucky devil!" squealed Mike.

CHAPTER XXXIX

That Nita Ravelle instantly recognized her, Jill was positive, although the other had given no sign.

For a moment or so a sort of blind, senseless rage surged up in the heart of Jill Stuart. The very devils of murder the demons of the red homicide squad, surfaced in her brain—screamed at her to kill, to kill! Oh, what a silly fool she had been! Why hadn't she provided the gestel?

Then, like a fade-out on a motion picture screen, the homicidal paroxism passed. But it left her with the definite certainty of what she would have done in that awful moment of frenzy, had she possessed the means, and she sent up a prayer of thanksgiving to the power that had moved her to put it back. After another moment, when she had more fully recovered control of herself, she turned to Mike.

"Don't look around yet. But—they're here! At th' fifth table on your right. She's looking this way, and has seen me, I know. What'll we do, Mike? I don't want to engage in any scene, and yet I know if I get near that woman I'd tear her eyes out! Oh!"

She gripped her fingers in her lap until the knuckles cracked, and fought the battle out once more—through sheer force of will power. In another minute she was calm again. But she wasn't sure she could trust herself even yet.

Mike, in the meantime, had taken a casual survey of the tables, and she, too, encountered the gaze of the wife robber. She glanced at Jill, noted the composure she had acquired, and nodded approval.

"You're a game scout, Jill, dear!" she said impulsively, but in a low tone, just loud enough for the other to hear. "Keep it up. Don't give the nasty vampire the satisfaction of knowing she's hurt you. As for Jack Stuart—I'm awfully surprised and disappointed in him. I didn't think he'd fall for Nita Ravelle. But—well, dear, what do you want to do?"

"Let us—" Jill turned to Le Tarte, sitting across the table from her. "Are women allowed in th' gambling room?" she asked.

"Certainly," he replied, a little surprised at her question. "A big part of the joint's patronage is made up of women players—especially at roulette." He leaned over toward her in a confidential manner.

"You've seen them already, haven't you?" he asked, eyeing her curiously.

"Yes," she replied, with perfect calm. "I've seen them. Now I want to get out of here for a while. I don't think I shall speak to—him in here. But I'd like to go into th' gambling room."

Her decision and proposal fitted into his instructions to keep her from speaking to, or being seen by, her husband.

"All right," he said, briefly, pushing back his chair and rising at once. "If you want to go in, I'll take you. C'mon!"

Without another glance toward the woman she hated, Jill rose and, with Mike, followed their escort out through a door at the rear, into a long passageway. Like the other, this led into a court. From this they were ushered through a hall into the main gambling room.

No pains had been spared in giving the Casino all the attractive lure that glitter and brilliant colors give to a gambling establishment.

Splendid paintings in frames of gold and silver set in white and black satin covered the walls. Luxury abounded on every side. Ostentation, sparkle and show, to fascinate the eye and hypnotize the senses.

The magnificence of the gorgeous setting drew involuntary exclamations of surprise from both women, even Jill forgetting for a moment the heart-disturbing scene she had just witnessed. But Mike knew the extreme pallor of Jill's face, accentuated by the spot of glowing color in each cheek, was not caused by this spectacle.

"I must keep her attention closely engaged for a while," Mike told herself, stealing another furtive glance at the woman she knew was suffering an agony greater than any ordinary physical pain. "She's in a state right now to run amuck if she's allowed to think too much. I wonder now if she would—"

"Oh, Jill!" she exclaimed, affecting an enthusiasm she was far from feeling, "let's buy some chips and try our luck at roulette! If you haven't any money with you I'll lend you some. Wha' d'yuh say?"

Jill answered with a little raise of the right shoulder, a characteristic motion of natural inheritance and one that might signify almost anything. In this instance it indicated acquiescence.

"I don't care," she said, a strained note in her voice that betrayed still more the fight she was making to hold herself in check.

"But I've got money," she added, quickly. "All I want to lose, anyhow."

Mike gave vent to a little sigh of relief at the inference of the words. Surely Jill couldn't be feeling so awfully desperate, she thought, if she could give consideration to the loss of a few dollars.

"All right, then," she chirped brightly. "We'll lay our sacrifices on the altar of the Blind Goddess and bend the knee to Lady Luck! Coming along, Professor?"

"Oh, I might shoot a buck or two," replied their escort, with a carefully cultivated bonchalance.

The roulette table, at the moment of their approach, was being patronized by a small coterie of men and women and a couple of flappers—"nickle shooters," evidently the pest of the gaming table.

Mike led down two $10 bills, and received in exchange a pile of chips. Jill followed suit, and then the croupier spun the little ball, and the game was on.

"One hundred and seventy five plunkers! Yuh musta hadda hunch!" She turned with a new challenge to the croupier.

"Spin 'em again. Mister Good-looking! I gotta win a million dollars t'night!"

But she didn't win a cent on that turn—she lost. Three blue checks and five red ones went to the house from her stack, while Jill, bold with so many yellow chips before her, lost $50 on the roll. The professor won 50 cents.

On the next spin Jill distributed seven yellow chips around on seven different numbers. Mike laid three on 17. The little ball shot out.

Around and around the wheel kept turning. The little ball kept running until it had run its course, when it dropped into a pocket, rolled out, and then dropped in again and stayed there.

"Double O!" droned the laconic voice of the croupier as he raked in the checks. Everybody took a long breath and heaved a sigh. The house had won again!

"Oh!" said Jill, surprised. They always are when the double O wins—for it wins so often! Mike said "Blame it"—just like that. But she said it with such a naivete as to call forth hearty laughter. Again the croupier picked up the little ball and snapped it on its journey.

"Oh, dear—what'll I play?" shouted Mike, and then slapped three reds on 17 again. It had won for Jill, why couldn't it win for her? Jill scooped up a handful of yellows, shut her eyes tight, and pushed out on the board in the block of numbers. When she opened her eyes she saw that Chance had guided her hand to release the stack of nine checks on No. 23.

"Skiddoo!" she wailed, and registered complete hopelessness.

"Yuh niver kin till," consoled Mike with a "foine" accent, her eyes trying to keep up with the eccentricities of the tricky little ball. "Yuh niver kin—" Then the little ball dropped, hopped up, and then hopped back again into pocket—No. 23!

"Twenty-three wins—on th' red!" barked the croupier, and then growled out the remainder—"thirty-five times nine—three hundred and fifteen dollars!"

"Well, if you aren't the luckiest giblets!" yipped Mike—and threw her arms around the lucky one's neck. "Tell me!" she demanded, fiercely, "how d'yuh get this way?"

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water — you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

BATTLE INSECTS

Scouts, outposts and vedettes in the war against insect pests of fruits in Ohio, will shortly take their posts for the opening of the spring campaign. An elaborate service of information on spraying times, for the benefit of Ohio fruit growers, functioned successfully last year and is to go into action again this spring, according to announcement from the extension specialists of the department of botany of the Ohio State University.

According to the plan of organization, which is based upon that used last year, three or four men from the department of botany and plant pathology of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station will be stationed at strategic points in southern Ohio, and later will move north through the other sections of the state, with the season.

To determine approximately the time when these men should reach their stations, one or two growers from various counties will send samples of old scabby apple tree leaves to the state university for observation.

The specialists in the field will watch for the emergence of the pests into the open, where they can be reached and killed by spray, and will broadcast this information to fruit growers in each section of the state through letters, telephone calls and the radio.

It was found last year that by this service much time and expense wasted in spraying at the wrong time, can be saved, and a more complete clean-up of insect pests can be made.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

W. B. Caldwell M D

AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

JACK and JILL

A MODERN STORY OF LOVE AND ROMANCE

By CLIFFORD WEBB, AUTHOR OF "BROKEN THREADS" "TWIN LOVES" "THE SOB SISTER" ETC.

© 1926 THE CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

"Oh, Jill—you lucky devil!" squealed Mike.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, is kidnaped by auto bandits, but is rescued by Jack Stuart, who takes her home, and remains to win her hand in marriage.

Three wonderfully happy years of married life are alloted Jack and Jill. At their expiration the young couple find themselves the proud parents of twin boys and a girl. Then the Big Event transpires.

Stuart and Tony Justin are paid $100,000 for an interest in their tungsten mine by Pat Sweeney, father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike."

Easy Money! But instead of joy, it seems to bring only distrust and misery to the Stuarts, and is the cause of repeated quarrels.

Nita Ravelle, a gay divorcee, and Professor Le Tarte, a dancing man, come to town, each with separate identities. They infringe on the domestic tranquility of Jack and Jill. Later reconciliation smooths relations, and for a time all is well.

Nita Ravelle intrigues Jack's presence with her at a gambling and dancing resort, and induces Le Tarte to scheme Jill's presence, that the wife may witness Jack's seeming inconsistancy. Jill goes, together with Mike and Le Tarte. There, glancing toward a table, she encounters Nita's insolent eyes, and with the woman is her Jack.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXIX

That Nita Ravelle instantly recognized her, Jill was positive, although the other had given no sign.

For a moment, or so, a sort of blind, senseless rage surged up in the heart of Jill Stuart. The very devils of murder, the demons of the red homicide squad, surfeited in her brain—screamed at her to kill! to kill! Oh, what a silly fool she had been! Why hadn't she brought the pistol?

Then, like a tableau on a movie picture screen, the theatrical pageant passed. But it left her with the definite certainty of what she would have done in that awful moment of frenzy had she possessed the means, and she sent up a prayer of thanksgiving to the power that that moved her to put it back. After another moment, when she had more fully recovered control of herself, she turned to Mike.

"Don't look around yet. But—they're here! At th' fifth table on your right. She's looking this way and has seen me, I know. What'll we do, Mike? I don't want to engage in any scene, and yet I know if I get near that woman I'd tear her eyes out! Oh!"

She gripped her fingers in her lap until the knuckles cracked, and fought the battle out once more—through sheer force of will power. In another minute she was calm again. But she wasn't sure she could trust herself even yet.

Mike, in the meantime, had taken a casual survey of the tables, and she, too, encountered the gaze of the wife robber. She glanced at Jill, noted the composure she had acquired, and nodded approval.

"You're a game scout, Jill, dear!" she said impulsively, but in a low tone, just loud enough for the other to hear. "Keep it up. Don't give the nasty vampire the satisfaction of knowing she's hurt you. As for Jack Stuart—I'm awfully surprised and disappointed in him. I didn't think he'd fall for Nita Ravelle. But—well, dear, what do you want to do?"

"Let us—" Jill turned to Le Tarte, sitting across the table from her. "Are women allowed in th' gambling room?" she asked.

"Certainly," he replied, a little surprised at her question. "A big part of the joint's patronage is made up of women players—especially at roulette." He leaned over toward her in a confidential manner.

"You've seen them already, haven't you?" he asked, eyeing her curiously.

"Yes," she replied, with perfect calm. "I've seen them. Now I want to get out of here for a while. I don't think I shall speak to—him in here. But I'd like to go into th' gambling room."

Her decision and proposal fitted into his instructions to keep her from speaking to, or being seen by, her husband.

"All right," he said, briefly, pushing back his chair and rising at once. "If you want to go in, I'll take you. C'mon!"

Without another glance toward the woman she hated, Jill rose and, with Mike, followed their escort out through a door at the rear, into a long passageway. Like the other, this led into a court. From this they were ushered through a hall into the main gambling room.

No pains had been spared in giving the Casino all the attractive lure that glitter and brilliant colors give to a gambling establishment.

Splendid paintings in frames of gold and silver set in white and black satin covered the walls. Luxury abounded on every side. Ostentation, sparkle and show, to fascinate the eye and hypnotize the senses.

The magnificence of the gorgeous setting drew involuntary exclamations of surprise from both women, even Jill forgetting for a moment the heart-disturbing scene she had just witnessed. But Mike knew the extreme pallor of Jill's face, accentuated by the spot of glowing color in each cheek, was not caused by this spectacle.

"I must keep her attention closely engaged for a while," Mike told herself, stealing another furtive glance at the woman she knew was suffering an agony greater than any ordinary physical pain. "She's in a state right now to run amuck if she's allowed to think too much. I wonder now if she would—"

"Oh, Jill!" she exclaimed, affecting an enthusiasm she was far from feeling, "let's buy some chips and try our luck at roulette! If you haven't any money with you I'll lend you some. Wha' d'yuh say?"

Jill answered with a little raise of the right shoulder, a characteristic motion of natural inheritance and one that might signify almost anything. In this instance it indicated acquiescence.

"I don't care," she said, a strained note in her voice that betrayed still more the fight she was making to hold herself in check.

"But I've got money," she added, quickly. "All I want to lose, anyhow."

Mike gave vent to a little sigh of relief at the inference of the words. Surely Jill couldn't be feeling so awfully desperate, she thought, if she could give consideration to the loss of a few dollars.

"All right, then," she chirped brightly. "We'll lay our sacrifices on the altar of the Blind Goddess and bend the knee to Lady Luck! Coming along, Professor?"

"Oh, I might shoot a buck or two," replied their escort, with a carefully cultivated nonchalance.

The roulette table, at the moment of their approach was being patronized by a small colerie of men and women and a couple of flappers—"nickle shooters," evidently the pest of the gaming table.

Mike laid down two $10 bills.

"Ten blues and twenty reds, mam'selle," said the man behind, with a poor imitation of French, as he pushed the stated number of checks across to her.

"I'll take th' same," said Jill, and laid down a $20 bill. The professor looked on.

As the croupier spun the little ball, Mike placed a blue check on each of three numbers—7, 14 and 21. Jill put five blues on 17.

Clickety-click, rattled the little ball as it hopped its way along the running board of the wheel, turning steadily on its ball-bearing axis in the opposite direction. Gradually losing its momentum, it began to drop into the pockets, tumble out, and drop into another, until finally, its force spent, it fell into a pocket and stayed there.

"Seventeen—wins on the black!" announced the croupier, a faint emphasis on the verb, as though he were surprised. Then he added, enunciating the numbers with a round, distinct utterance, "thirty-five times five—one hundred and seventy-five dollars!"

Then he raked in all the other checks on the table save those of the nickle shooters, who were down on the black for even money, after which he pushed across the green cloth to Jill her winnings—thirty-five yellow checks, each representing $5, and her bet of five $5 checks.

A deep silence, oppressive almost, had hung over the small assemblage of players from the instant the croupier had announced the winning number until he made the pay-off. That broke the spell.

"Oh, Jill, you lucky divil!" squealed Mike, as she threw her right arm around the other's waist and gave her an impulsive hug.

"One hundred and seventy five plunkers! Yuh musta hadda hunch!" She turned with a new challenge to the croupier.

"Spin 'em again. Mister Good-looking! I gotta win a million dollars t'night!"

But she didn't win a cent on that turn—she lost. Three blue checks and five red ones went to the house from her stack, while Jill, bold with so many yellow chips before her, lost $50 on the roll. The professor won 50 cents.

On the next spin Jill distributed seven yellow chips around on seven different numbers. Mike laid three on 17. The little ball shot out.

Around and around the wheel kept turning. The little ball kept running until it had run its course, when it dropped into a pocket, rolled out, and then dropped in again and stayed there.

"Double O!" droned the laconic voice of the croupier as he raked in the checks. Everybody took a long breath and heaved a sigh. The house had won again!

"Oh!" said Jill, surprised. They always are when the double O wins—for it wins so often! Mike said "Blame it"—just like that. But she said it with such a naivete as to call forth hearty laughter. Again the croupier picked up the little ball and snapped it on its journey.

"Oh, dear—what'll I play?" shouted Mike, and then slapped three reds on 17 again. It had won for Jill, why couldn't it win for her? Jill scooped up a handful of yellows, shut her eyes tight, and pushed out on the board in the block of numbers. When she opened her eyes she saw that Chance had guided her hand to release the stack of nine checks on No. 23.

"Skiddoo!" she wailed, and registered complete hopelessness.

"Yuh niver kin till," consoled Mike with a "foine" accent, her eyes trying to keep up with the eccentricities of the tricky little ball. "Yuh niver kin—" Then the little ball dropped, hopped up, and then hopped back again into pocket—No. 23!

"Twenty-three wins—on th' red!" barked the croupier, and then growled out the remainder—"thirty-five times nine—three hundred and fifteen dollars!"

"Well, if you aren't the luckiest giblets!" yipped Mike—and threw her arms around the lucky one's neck. "Tell me!" she demanded, fiercely, "how d'yuh get this way?"

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water — you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

24 Hours Ends COLDS

A "common cold" may result in grippe or flu. At the very first sign, go to a drug store and get a box of HILL'S. Take promptly. HILL'S breaks up a cold in 24 hours because it does the four vital things at once—stops the cold, checks the fever, opens the bowels and tones the system. Red box, 30 cents.

BATTLE INSECTS

Scouts, outposts and vedettes in the war against insect pests of fruits in Ohio, will shortly take their posts for the opening of the spring campaign. An elaborate service of information on spraying times, for the benefit of Ohio fruit growers, functioned successfully last year and is to go into action again this spring, according to announcement from the extension specialists of the department of botany of the Ohio State University.

According to the plan of organization, which is based upon that used last year, three or four men from the department of botany and plant pathology of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station will be stationed at strategic points in southern Ohio, and later will move north through the other sections of the state, with the season.

To determine approximately the time when these men should reach their stations, one or two growers from various counties will send samples of old scabby apple tree leaves to the state university for observation.

The specialists in the field will watch for the emergence of the pests into the open, where they can be reached and killed by spray, and will broadcast this information to fruit growers in each section of the state through letters, telephone calls and the radio.

It was found last year that by this service much time and expense wasted in spraying at the wrong time, can be saved, and a more complete clean-up of insect pests can be made.

DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME HERE SUNDAY

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have one in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

TORCH VICTIM SEEN AS SACRIFICE TO LOVE

Margaret Brown and the exclusive Park Ave., New York, apartment house at which she worked, 11th floor

By CLARK KINNAIRD

New York Correspondent of Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, March 5—In servant halls in the exclusive apartment house at 1105 Park Ave., investigators are piecing together fragmentary conversations, impressions, glimpses and bits of gossip, and reconstructing their knowledge of Margaret Brown, the quiet, reserved woman of 40, or thereabouts, who died a martyr to love, wrapped in flames, on a lonely road near Bernardsville, N. J., after giving up her position as governess.

At No. 1105, in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James Park Gillespie, Margaret Brown was a governess for ten months. Her charge was the Gillespie's daughter, five years old, the only child.

Margaret Brown was in daily contact with her employers and four other servants, but none of them know much about her. She did not go beyond the conventional civilities with the maids. They recognized her as one apart, but they were curious about her, and sometimes they discussed her, they admit now.

Originally From Buffalo

When they hired Miss Brown, the parents of her little charge did not pursue their investigation of her antecedents beyond inquiring about the references provided by her last employers, the family of Irving Bloomingdale. They knew that she was from Buffalo originally, and that she had been a governess fifteen years.

One of the members of the household, a Miss Miller, knows that Miss Brown met a man referred to as "doctor" at various times in Central Park. Little Jean remembers Miss Brown meeting this man when she was taken to the park for airings. She says the "doctor" had an automobile. In this car, it is supposed, the governess rode forth to seek romance—and find death.

Mrs. Gillespie is naturally resentful over being thrust into the front page's glare by the fatal intrigue of one of her employes, but she is courteous to professional inquirers, and speaks kindly of the governess.

Mrs. Gillespie's Statement

"I found her truthworthy. She was satisfactory in every way, and she was a person of the highest integrity," Mrs. Gillespie says.

"I knew nothing of her personal affairs. Her home was in Buffalo, I believe, and she had relatives in New Jersey."

When she told Mrs. Gillespie she was giving up the position, the governess explained she had to go to California to visit a sick relative. The resignation was accepted with regret because little Jean liked the governess. She departed on Monday morning. A little before midnight of that day it was when motorists found her burning body beside a road in New Jersey.

The Gillespies have no theories or explanations of the woman's death, but backstairs they feel that Margaret Brown was the victim of the man in whose arms she hopefully sought escape from the hum-drum existence of a caretaker of other persons' children. They guess there had been little romance in her life. They remember that she seemed to have few friends; that she spent much of her time reading. They don't remember what she read, but they suppose it was stories of love. Backstairs they have hearts, too.

The 5 Great Hazards

"It has been in this house fifty years. You can't find another piece like it. This, ladies and gentlemen, is genuine! What am I offered for it? These old treasures are going for a song. Give me a bid."

—As the auctioneer rattles on, the neighbors think of the old days of entertainment and open hospitality in that house. They wonder how long the proud and lonely mistress has been fighting off the inevitable.

WHILE presenting our Annual Statement showing Assets of $2,388,647,636—2 Billion, 388 Million Dollars—representing savings and investments of 25 million people in the United States and Canada, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company desires to make clear what a life insurance company can do, what it should do and what, so far, it has been unable to do toward meeting what have been called the five great hazards of life:

Death
which may come early, before one's dependents have been provided for.

Accident
always sudden and often causing lessened earning power.

Sickness
which may cause want as well as suffering.

Dependent Old Age
which must seek charity if self-support is no longer possible.

Unemployment
which may bring distress to others in addition to the one unemployed.

Annuities for old age, protection in case of death, accident or sickness — almost every financial requirement can now be met by insurance. Only one problem is still unsolved—unemployment insurance—and that only because legislation permitting it has so far been refused. The day must come when every family can and will plan to meet every one of the five great hazards so that none of its members will ever face the need of charity.

The United States and Canada pay higher wages than other countries. Nearly all their workers earn enough to provide for both present and future needs. If they will but plan ahead they may have in their years of retirement, not merely bare existence, but real comfort.

Thousands of those interested in life insurance have asked how the family income should be expended. Send for our Home Budget Booklet which tells how much should be spent for necessities—food, housing, clothing, fuel—and how much should be laid aside for protection. It will be mailed free.

TORCH VICTIM SEEN AS SACRIFICE TO LOVE

Margaret Brown and the exclusive Park Ave., New York, apartment house at which she worked, 11th floor

By CLARK KINNAIRD

New York Correspondent of Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, March 5—In servant halls in the exclusive apartment house at 1105 Park Ave., investigators are piecing together fragmentary conversations, impressions, glimpses and bits of gossip, and reconstructing their knowledge of Margaret Brown, the quiet, reserved woman of 40, or thereabouts, who died a martyr to love, wrapped in flames, on a lonely road near Bernardsville, N. J., after giving up her position as governess.

At No. 1105, in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James Park Gillespie, Margaret Brown was a governess for ten months. Her charge was the Gillespie's daughter, five years old, the only child.

Margaret Brown was in daily contact with her employers and four other servants, but none of them know much about her. She did not go beyond the conventional civilities with the maids. They recognized her as one apart, but they were curious about her, and sometimes they discussed her, they admit now.

Originally From Buffalo

When they hired Miss Brown, the parents of her little charge did not pursue their investigation of her antecedents beyond inquiring about the references provided by her last employers, the family of Irving Bloomingdale. They knew that she was from Buffalo originally, and that she had been a governess fifteen years.

One of the members of the household, a Miss Miller, knows that Miss Brown met a man referred to as "doctor" at various times in Central Park. Little Jean remembers Miss Brown meeting this man when she was taken to the park for airings. She says the "doctor" had an automobile. In this car, it is supposed, the governess rode forth to seek romance—and find death.

Mrs. Gillespie is naturally resentful over being thrust into the front page's glare by the fatal intrigue of one of her employes, but she is courteous to professional inquirers, and speaks kindly of the governess.

Mrs. Gillespie's Statement

"I found her truthworthy. She was satisfactory in every way, and she was a person of the highest integrity," Mrs. Gillespie says.

"I knew nothing of her personal affairs. Her home was in Buffalo, I believe, and she had relatives in New Jersey."

When she told Mrs. Gillespie she was giving up the position, the governess explained she had to go to California to visit a sick relative. The resignation was accepted with regret because little Jean liked the governess. She departed on Monday morning. A little before midnight of that day it was when motorists found her burning body beside a road in New Jersey.

The Gillespies have no theories or explanations of the woman's death, but backstairs they feel that Margaret Brown was the victim of the man in whose arms she hopefully sought escape from the hum-drum existence of a caretaker of other persons' children. They guess there had been little romance in her life. They remember that she seemed to have few friends; that she spent much of her time reading. They don't remember what she read, but they suppose it was stories of love. Backstairs they have hearts, too.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A SONG OF THANKSGIVING—Sing unto the Lord with Thanksgiving; sing praise upon the harp unto our God.—Psalm 147:7.

CONTROLLING FLOOD OF WORDS

Back of the President's recent recession on flood relief financing can be discovered his fear that the waste of words now going on may destroy the opportunity for actual legislation. It is rather characteristic of Mr. Coolidge that foreseeing such a possibility, and appreciating the need for legislation, that he should suggest a willingness or a desire for immediate flood legislation with the thought that later on the plan of financing and the distribution of the costs of the same be postponed to some later time when part of the heat and rancor of the debate will have vanished.

There is no ignoring the fact that as Congress was headed, the disagreements over the financing program could easily have blocked the enactment of flood relief legislation.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST

New York proudly announces plans for the largest hotel in the world, structure 400 feet tall with 2,503 rooms; but since there is no good reason why a hotel 405 feet tall and with 2,509 rooms will not be reared immediately after or just before the new building is opened to the public, what is the difference?

New York has been producing the "world's largest" this and that for many decades. Its first skyscrapers were the tallest buildings in the world, for a few years, or months, successively. Its most capacious office buildings, its most extensive stores have been press agented as new champions came on to take the glory and be put on postcards for pop-eyed visitors to send back home.

In time New York will become cold on the subject of records in size. Then it may concentrate on records in quality in hotels. The metropolis has some very good hotels that never get any free publicity They are not large enough But just why publicity is free for a hotel's size and not for the excellence of its fare or the superiority of its service is one of the mysteries connected with America's system of free advertising.

ACQUIRING BUSINESS SENSE

A time when all the governing bodies in the United States from school district and state house to national capital will be operated as big businesses are operated is foreseen by Senator Arthur Capper.

The national budget, he says, has set the example and cut the pattern for operating government efficiently, an example which states and cities are following, and which counties and school districts soon will follow.

A good deal more than a million dollars a day is being saved by American taxpayers by the national budget system. A cent a yard on 3 million yards of canvas was saved last year by eliminating the unnecessary blue stripe from mail sacks. A saving of $3,280 was made through buying paper clips at wholesale. The total saving for the year in small items like these was 19 million dollars. It is only by such non-wasteful expenditure and the constructive economy of money well spent that we shall finally cut out all duplication in public business and shall at last control the ever-rising flood of taxes and give the taxpayer the full 100 cents worth of benefit and service to which he is entitled."

The senator also points out that the budget system is a step towards peace in that it calls attention annually to the 82 per cent of our national revenues absorbed by war.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

SPIRIT OF VICTORY

Commander Byrd will lead an expedition to the South Pole next fall. Although he will take but 55 men he has had 3,000 applications. It's a good sign of the modern age when men crowd each other for a chance to go on a long, hard adventure. It's the spirit that broke down the frontiers and carried civilization forward. There are those who think the spirit of adventure and pioneering is dead. It isn't. When the big opportunity comes men are as good as they ever were—and better.

COMPETITION

It's the period of brains instead of brawn. The competition of minds was never so keen as it is today. Portsmouth, O., progressive city on the Ohio river, has been using two airplanes on a tour of southern states and cities for the purpose of advertising Portsmouth and the products made in that city. Think as fast as you can, and be sure there is somebody who is pretty likely to out-think you if you don't watch out.

STUDY THE SYSTEM

Speaking for employers in large corporations an Akron, O., man says our present school education system is not satisfactory. Employers, judging by the results, are finding this out, he says. Young people, starting to work after graduation from high school, find they are not fitted for their jobs. That sort of charge ought to be thoroughly analyzed. A school system that works smoothly may or may not mean much. High marks won by hard-working pupils, however praiseworthy, may not mean much if the type of training is not adjusting young people to life.

Perhaps we need to worry less about school houses and more about the type of education.

THE RIGHT MOMENT

Getting what you want is pretty much a matter of asking for it at the right moment. Patience and self control may mean delay but they bring home the bacon in the end. Having the forbearance not to argue with someone who is angry or out of humor is pretty likely to win the argument for you eventually.

The power of discretion is as great as the power of aggressiveness.

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Mar. 5. — The management of one hotel has an ingenious method of getting rid of the contents of its "Lost and Found" box once a year. On a certain day in February, the employees of the hotel gather together to receive largesse in the way of odd silk hose, jewelry, pajamas, boudoir dolls and other impedimenta left behind by careless or hasty guests. Just how the distribution is managed my scout was not able to tell me. I suggested that the use of the old-fashioned suburban fair "grab bag" was the most feasible way of carrying off the stunt, and it seems to me that the managers of theatres where unsuccessful plays are showing are missing a good bet when they fail to inaugurate a similiar policy. If the week's receipts are low, why not advertise an open grab bag party for all who attend matinee performances, with the prizes possible bits of jewelry dropped by haughty lady members of the late coming cocktail parties. If one is to judge by the material in the lost and found columns of the daily papers, there are lost, every 24 hours, in the city, a bushel basket crammed with diamond lavallieres, pearl necklaces, platinum and diamond wrist watches, pigeon blood ruby rings, sapphire pendants emerald brooches and whatnot. So a theatre grab bag should prove a most attractive come-on for reluctant customers.

Incident. A Fifth avenue bus stops at a shady corner and the driver leaps forth. Passengers watch him amazedly, and in some trepidation, as he sprints down the block. He picks up a discarded box from the pavement and returns. A singular proceeding — for an employe whose movements are apt to be so ordered as to class him as a human automation. One of the more forward passengers asks the conductor the reason for this departure from bus convention. The conductor says, "Oh, he just wanted that box for fire wood. The starter at the end of the run gets pretty chilled these nights."

The papers say that a new hotel is to have a monster tank in its main restaurant from which patrons may fish for their dinner. Their catches will be immediately prepared for eating.

WHY WE EAT MORE ON CLOUDY DAYS

A study of weather and business has its surprises.

A restaurant man knows that appetites are not the same on a dark day, gloomy day as on a day that is bright and cheerful. Natural enough! But the surprising fact is that they eat more on the day that is dark and dismal.

"On a cloudy day," an old restaurant man tells me, "people just sit and eat. There is nothing else to do. On a nice day they eat less and hasten out into the open. But the less they eat the more particular they are about the quality."

A young woman opened a little restaurant near the department of agriculture in Washington. Most of her customers are employees of that department. She does a big business every day, but the rush is greatest when the day is the stormiest. On a fine day the men from near-by buildings walk to restaurants farther away, just for the exercise. Those who do not go to other restaurants cut down their eating in order to spend all the time possible in the open air.

No one knows how much business, even of professional men, is affected by the subtle influence of weather on human temperment. Dentists know that patients are slow to make appointments and quick to break them on cloudy days. A cloudy day is depressing to many persons, and they lack the nerve to face the ordeal of having their teeth cobbled. The same thing that hurts the dentist's trade helps the regular pill doctors. Many people whose spirits are dampened by the weather, or whose ills seem aggrivated, think that if they go to a doctor and purchase a prescription from him they will feel better.

Rainy days boost the mail-order business. People living in the country—and they form an important percentage of mail customers—have less work to do when it rains. They are obliged to remain indoors, and drive away dull care by reading the mail-order catalogue.

Clients in most lines, however, bloom with the sunshine. Architects find that comparatively few persons come in on a gloomy day to discuss building projects.

Go into any hotel lobby or movie theatre on a rainy afternoon and you may find traveling salesmen who would be busy if the sun were shining. They know that people are not receptive to new propositions when the weather is disagreeable. This is especially true in the selling of bonds, machinery, or other lines which require a good deal of educational effort.

In offering a reward for the head of every bank bandit killed, the Texas Bankers' Association has, of course, taken precautions against attempts by unscrupulous persons to cash heads that are not genuine. — Punch.

"COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE"

My "candiid opinion" is solicited on Judge Lindsey's book, "Companionate Marriage." A large order for a small space. I must confess that I haven't yet found time to read Judge Lindsey's book, but recently a group of newspaper women entertained the judge at luncheon and he talked in a delightful informal manner concerning his book and his views, and we asked questions. So I don't feel so ignorant as I would otherwise.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: As I have finished reading Judge Lindsey's book, 'Companionate Marriage,' and am contemplating marriage this June, I would like to have your candid opinion of this work. I would especially like to know what you think of the man and woman having outside relations. Yours very truly,
"R. A. Y."

I agree with Judge Lindsey entirely that there is nothing immoral about sex, and that young people should be encouraged to talk about it with their parents or older friends for help in solving their problems. Also, I believe, with him, in the single standard of morals for men and women. And as to the companionate marriage part, I, too, think that it is sometimes better for young people who are violently in love to marry, even though they may find later that they are not suited for life companionship. As to "outside relations," if you mean by that sex relations with other than the lawful wife or husband, I answer that from what I heard Judge Lindsey say he would agree with me that while we hear much of the inhibitions and complexes brought on by supressed emotions, not so much is made of what is equally true, that self-control and high moral standards lead to the finest self-development and a true happiness.

It's all too big a question to answer here. If you were to write me a personal letter, R. A. Y., I might amplify my views and you might give me some of your reactions.

To Blue Eyes I must say that I have no way of making her acquainted with a desirable male friend. Sorry.

If the others treat you sarcastically, "Doubtful Blue Eyes," go out with other young people for awhile. But are you sure you are not over sensitive?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: This summer two fellows that I met fell violently in love with me. Neither one knew about the other, nor does now. I correspond with both. This Christmas I went on a visit to another city and there met the boy I will ALWAYS love. He seemed to return my feelings, and, after I left he wrote me sweet, sweet letters. I had heard that he was crazy about a girl who lived in the town where he attended the university. I asked him about her when he first told me of his love, and he said they had fallen out and she didn't mean a thing to him. Recently I received a cold letter from him, and in it he said that he and his girl friend had made up. He says he is madly in love with this girl, and has given her his frat pin. He wants me to write him soon and often and be his friend.

"What can I do? Should I tell him I still love him, or not answer the letter, and wear one of those other fellow's frat pins? Would you go back to the town where he lives this summer, and if you did, would you expect a date with him? Do you think there's any chance of making him love ME, honestly? Gosh, if he doesn't, I just believe I'd like to die.

"Broken-Hearted."

If you're a "dead game little sport," Broken-Hearted, you'll write the boy and tell him that you were not "stringing" him, and that yuo think it was not right of him to write such letters to you when all the time he was in love with another girl. However, you are willing to let bygones be bygones, and you wish him joy with the girl he loves. Then don't write again. And don't wear another boy's pin unless you honestly are in love with him. That would be "stringing" him. You'll be happier knowing that you have done the square thing.

"United States to Meet Mexico at Tennis." Mr. Morrow will doubtless wish for a love match.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Plenty of fruit is used in the menu for an entire day submitted. If the luncheon menu is not enough, maybe there would be a litteral cereal left from breakfast to add to it, or milk might be served instead of tea. Of course, if there was a guest, a hot dish could be served. Macaroni and cheese would be very good.

BREAKFAST

Mucus Forming Foods and Wrong Combinations

P. — "Mucus forming foods" ideas and a lot of such scareheads about food explosions and disorders from harmful food combinations, such as starches with protein, starches with fruit, milk with fish or meat, etc., are most often propaganda of those who have some system of diet to sell; they want to impress on you that you must come to them to learn how to get your right combinations.

There are no foods that form mucus. An unbalanced diet, one that doesn't contain all the necessary elements needed for the body, will undermine its resistance and the mucus membranes as well as other organs will more easily contract infections. The mucus membranes in this case will be stimulated to an ever-secretion of mucus.

It is advisable to get your proportionate needs in each meal; that is, to have balanced meals; but in case you should want more of certain food at one meal at some time, so making the meal unbalanced, this is alright providing you make up the deficiencies in your other meals.

Many of the individual ideas of wrong combinations of foods come from distress caused by overeating, or bolting food, or eating at the wrong time, such as during anger or other strong emotion; or from those who have certain food idiosyncracies. For instance, some people cannot take eggs; they always act in a disagreeable manner with them. But the majority of people can take eggs. Some notice that with a certain combination, especially one with too much starch and sugar, they'll have an acid stomach, etc.

Naturally, these people have to avoid these foods of these combinations. The average person who doesn't overeat, and sees that he gets correct amounts of the different foods each day, can combine 'em any way he likes.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin with your request. This article gives a list of some good books on dietetics.

Broken Noses and Specialists' Fees

S. wants to know if I can tell her the approximate cost of having a broken nose straightened?

Work of this nature has to be done by a specialist in plastic surgery, S., and specialists have to charge more for their work, not only because their practice is limited, but because of the long years of extensive preparations. Usually specialists, as the general practitioners, modify their charges to the patient's income. The lawyer, you know, charges a larger fee for a case involving $100,000 than for a case that involves only $100, and the courts place a higher economic value on a man whose earning capacity is high if he is accidentally disabled or killed. I will quote from an article on the subject:

"When a poor man is restored to health and his earning capacity returned to him, the pyhsician has restored the ability to earn small wages or salary; if, on the other hand, a $50,000 a year man has been restored to health, the physician has restored to the man the ability to earn that amount of money each year. Regarding the services rendered as a commodity, is not this particular commodity infinitely more valuable financially to the one than to the other? Although the work done and time consumed in the treatment of the two cases does not vary, the price must carry with its economical value to the particular individual."

You see, S., it would be absolutely impossible for me to give you any idea of the cost.

Noses are straightened and other deformities very successfully repaired, and my advice to you would be to go to a specialist and tell him frankiy your financial circumstances. Your improved happiness will be worth the money involved.

Tomorrow: Answers to Mothers.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Mar. 5.—Unadulterated free trade's lone advocate in congress, insofar as I'm aware, is Representative George Huddleston of Alabama.

There are tariff-reduction-ists and tariff-for-revenue-only-ites, and lots of other tariff modification brands, but they all hedge—some.

This little man from the industrial city of Birmingham—the last place in the south which you'd suppose would stand for such talk—is the only one I know of, with the nerve to come out for no tariff at all.

But even supposing he's right, in theory—

How get down, from our present high tariff perch, to the free trade earth?—without a crash.

"You touch," said the Birmingham congressman, in answer to this question, "on a very sensitive spot.

"It would amount to a revolution, certainly. During a revolution, however desirable the end, many people are likely literally to starve to death."

"I don't believe," continued Representative Huddleston, "that I'd favor destroying our protective system completely, at one stroke.

"I believe I'd begin with the tariff on the necessaries of life. And then the products of monopolies. Then the more modest comforts. Finally luxuries. Ultimately everything.

"Blowing up a dam is dangerous. It's better to take it down by degrees."

Very true.

Mixing our metaphors still a little more, suddenly to deprive an addict of his drug is to wreck his nerves. It's less disorganizing to his system to taper down gradually. Yet even that's anguish. It lasts longer, too.

"Besides which," supplemented the congressman, "he generally tapers up instead."

"However," he added, "in my opinion our tariff evils will automatically correct themselves in the course of 10 or 20 years.

"Hitherto, as our protected industrial have produced more and more, our population has been growing still faster, absorbing the industries' increasing output—absorbing it here, at home.

"Today, with our population more nearly stationary, our manufacturers are beginning to turn out a surplus, for which they need foreign markets. In such markets they find it hard to compete with exports from countries less inflated than the United States.

"Some of them are realizing this difficulty already. They'll all see it in time."

"New England's cotton mills feel the pinch," went on the representative. "Makers of the coarser fabrics are shutting down, and moving south, to be nearer the source of raw supplies.

"My desk is covered with the propaganda of woolen manufacturers, in favor of a lower tariff on raw wool. They haven't reached the point of asking a reduction on the finished product yet, but they compete in foreign markets without cheaper raw material.

"Free trade's coming—in a decade or two."

A tariff for revenue?

"After all," rejoined Congressman Huddleston, "a revenue tariff's only a form of sales tax—the worst form.

"And quite unnecessary. The income tax supplies all the funds the government needs."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BEAUTY HABITS FOR THE PLASTIC AGE

There are certain habits of poise and posture which are all important to livliness. Beauty habits were inculcated into the youth of past generations. In the American pre-Revolutionary days, the very young girl was strapped to a stiff, unyielding board for an hour a day to cultivate the rigidly erect posture which was the sign of gentle birth and breeding. She walked miles across the polished boards of her schoolroom floor, balancing a book on her head, so that her poise and bearing might be "sans reproche."

She was taught the melody of a fluted, modulated voice, the importance of precision in speech, the simple facts of courteous bearing—all matters of exterior training, as you may notice!

Today, tennis, swimming and skating will bring the same physical strength and grace that was far less pleasantly achieved two hundred years ago.

In schools the cultivation of good posture has long been a subject for lectures, discussion and definite exercise. But while the high head and erect shoulders resulting are in themselves admirable and graceful, poise, which should alwayvs be developed along with correct posture, is frequently neglected.

If you have watched someone else's daughter shamble through the "awkward age," very often premanently sacrificing her charm to the dreadful "inferiority complex" resulting, you are more than willing to take definite preventive steps before the age dawns on your child. Rythmic exercise will develop bodily grace, and the cultivation of dancing or any social talent will speedily abolish self-consciousness.

I know one socially prominent mother who has taken her daughter to a fashionable hotel dining room once every month since she was 12. She has taught her to order wisely, to pour tea with charming poise, to submit gracefully to the ministrations of the waiter and, in general, to conduct herself beautifully. I can assure you that she possesses, at 16, all the social arts of her lovely mother. She does not stumble and turn crimson with embarrassment when she enters a room, nor does she expect the slightest attention paid to her. She is utterly devoid of self-consciousness, and in consequence—utterly charming. The adolescent years are the habit-forming years.

It is during this period that the clever mother teaches her daughter to care for herself. She must learn the importance of the daily bath, of white, shining teeth, neatly-groomed hair, straight heels and even hemlines—all those habits of personal daintiness which makes for a lovely woman.

Peter's Adventure

THRASHER GIVES ADVICE TO THE FARMER

"How do I like it, Brown Thrasher?" cried Peter. "Why, more than I can tell you! Your performance was wonderful! But, then, as far as that goes, so was Catbird's, and if I had my choice I should go to the concert Catbird gives instead of to yours every time. You are so conceited that it takes away much of the pleasure of listening to your singing."

"Don't you sass me, Boy, or I'll peck out your eye." Thrasher was angry indeed.

"Oh, no, you will not, Cousin," interrupted Catbird, quickly. "Not if I can help it, and I think I could. But what is the use of us scrapping on a beautiful day like this? Your voice is wonderful, every one knows that! And I sing well enough to suit myself, so why should either of us worry?"

"It is all very well for you to talk like that, Cousin!" exclaimed Brown Thrasher, "but you have not been spoken to as yet! I do not intend to stay here a moment longer. I have a very nervous disposition, as you well know, and I should thrash my tail off if I had to listen to any more insults from a Two-Legs. I shall save my voice next time for a more appreciative audience."

Darting an angry glance at Peter, back over the garden wall flew Brown Thrasher.

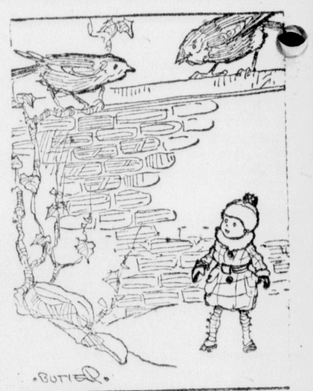

"Queer, but nothing that Cousin Thrasher says ever ruffles my feathers," remarked Catbird, gazing after him. "I don't care a bread crumb which of us sings the best! Odd though, it certainly does matter a lot to him."

"Yes, doesn't it," agreed the boy readily. "But, to change the subject, would you mind telling me what makes him lash about so with his tail?"

"That is a hard question to answer, friend. To tell you the truth I don't believe I ever heard." Catbird fluttered his wings with a thoughtful air. "I shouldn't wonder if Thrasher does that because he has such an excitable nature—nervous, as he told you. But of one thing I am very sure, that habit of his — and it is a family trait, he just can't keep his tail still—is what has given him his name, Thrasher. Now if you will excuse me, I think that I will leave you. It is some time since I have seen my little wife and I never like to be away from her for very long at a stretch."

Catbird was just about ready to make off when suddenly a voice from above their heads caused both the boy and the bird to look up.

"And that isn't all that I can do, either! You may not know it, boy, but I am general director in planting time. Why, if it was not for me I can't imagine what the farmers would do. 'Shuck it!

"SHUCK IT! SOW IT! PLOW IT! HOE IT!" CRY I, AND MR. FARMER DOES AS I TELL HIM, EVERY TIME"

Shuck it!' cry I. And off from the cob come the kernels. 'Sow it! Plow it! Hoe it!' I tell the farmer what to do and Mr. Farmer does what I command him every time. I forgot to tell you this before, boy, I couldn't go away without having you know what a smart fellow I am."

Brown Thrasher, for it was he, cocked his head upon one side with an important air as much as if to say, "There, now are you satisfied that I am cleverer than Cousin Catbird?" Then without another word off he flew.

Peter laughed until the tears rolled down his cheeks. Brown Thrasher had appeared so unexpectedly and had looked so comical bobbing about on the top of the wall. Peter turned to speak to Catbird when, much to his astonishment, he found that jolly mocker had disappeared, too.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A SONG OF THANKSGIVING.—Sing unto the Lord with Thanksgiving; sing praise upon the harp unto our God.—Psalm 147:7.

CONTROLLING FLOOD OF WORDS

Back of the President's recent recession on flood relief financing can be discovered his fear that the waste of words now going on may destroy the opportunity for actual legislation. It is rather characteristic of Mr. Coolidge that foreseeing such a possibility, and appreciating the need for legislation, that he should suggest a willingness or a desire for immediate flood legislation with the thought that later on the plan of financing and the distribution of the costs of the same be postponed to some later time when part of the heat and rancor of the debate will have vanished.

There is no ignoring the fact that as Congress was headed, the disagreements over the financing program could easily have blocked the enactment of flood relief legislation.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST

New York proudly announces plans for the largest hotel in the world, structure 400 feet tall with 2,503 rooms; but since there is no good reason why a hotel 405 feet tall and with 2,509 rooms will not be reared immediately after or just before the new building is opened to the public, what is the difference?

New York has been producing the "world's largest" this and that for many decades. Its first skyscrapers were the tallest buildings in the world, for a few years, or months, successively. Its most capacious office buildings, its most extensive stores have been press agented as new champions came on to take the glory and be put on postcards for pop-eyed visitors to send back home.

In time New York will become cold on the subject of records in size. Then it may concentrate on records in quality in hotels. The metropolis has some very good hotels that never get any free publicity. They are not large enough. But just why publicity is free for a hotel's size and not for the excellence of its fare or the superiority of its service is one of the mysteries connected with America's system of free advertising.

ACQUIRING BUSINESS SENSE

A time when all the governing bodies in the United States from school district and state house to national capital will be operated as big businesses are operated is foreseen by Senator Arthur Capper.

The national budget, he says, has set the example and cut the pattern for operating government efficiently, an example which states and cities are following, and which counties and school districts soon will follow.

A good deal more than a million dollars a day is being saved by American taxpayers by the national budget system. A cent a yard on 5 million yards of canvas was saved last year by eliminating the unnecessary blue stripe from mail sacks. A saving of $3,280 was made through buying paper clips at wholesale. The total saving for the year in small items like these was 19 million dollars. It is only by such non-wasteful expenditure and the constructive economy of money well spent that we shall finally cut out all duplication in public business and shall at last control the ever-rising flood of taxes and give the taxpayer the full 100 cents worth of benefit and service to which he is entitled."

The senator also points out that the budget system is a step towards peace in that it calls attention annually to the 82 per cent of our national revenues absorbed by war.

SPIRIT OF VICTORY

Commander Byrd will lead an expedition to the South Pole next fall. Although he will take but 55 men he has had 3,000 applications. It's a good sign of the modern age when men crowd each other for a chance to go on a long, hard adventure. It's the spirit that broke down the frontiers and carried civilization forward. There are those who think the spirit of adventure and pioneering is dead. It isn't. When the big opportunity comes men are as good as they ever were—and better.

COMPETITION

It's the period of brains instead of brawn. The competition of minds was never so keen as it is today. Portsmouth, O., progressive city on the Ohio river, has been using two airplanes on a tour of southern states and cities for the purpose of advertising Portsmouth and the products made in that city. Think as fast as you can, and be sure there is somebody who is pretty likely to out-think you if you don't watch out.

STUDY THE SYSTEM

Speaking for employers in large corporations an Akron, O., man says our present school education system is not satisfactory. Employers, judging by the results, are finding this out, he says. Young people, starting to work after graduation from high school, find they are not fitted for their jobs. That sort of charge ought to be thoroughly analyzed. A school system that works smoothly may or may not mean much. High marks won by hard-working pupils, however praiseworthy, may not mean much if the type of training is not adjusting young people to life.

Perhaps we need to worry less about school houses and more about the type of education.

THE RIGHT MOMENT

Getting what you want is pretty much a matter of asking for it at the right moment. Patience and self control may mean delay but they bring home the bacon in the end. Having the forbearance not to argue with someone who is angry or out of humor is pretty likely to win the argument for you eventually.

The power of discretion is as great as the power of aggressiveness.

WHY WE EAT MORE ON CLOUDY DAYS

A study of weather and business has its surprises.

A restaurant man knows that appetites are not the same on a dark day, gloomy day as on a day that is bright and cheerful. Natural enough! But the surprising fact is that they eat more on the day that is dark and dismal.

"On a cloudy day," an old restaurant man tells me, "people just sit and eat. There is nothing else to do. On a nice day they eat less and hasten out into the open. But the less they eat the more particular they are about the quality."

A young woman opened a little restaurant near the department of agriculture in Washington. Most of her customers are employees of that department. ### "COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE"

My "candiid opinion" is solicited on Judge Lindsey's book, "Companionate Marriage." A large order for a small space. I must confess that I haven't yet found time to read Judge Lindsey's book, but recently a group of newspaper women entertained the judge at luncheon and he talked in a delightful informal manner concerning his book and his views, and we asked questions. So I don't feel so ignorant as I would otherwise.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: As I have finished reading Judge Lindsey's book, 'Companionate Marriage,' and am contemplating marriage this June, I would like to have your candid opinion of this work. I would especially like to know what you think of the man and woman having outside relations. Yours very truly, "R. A. Y."

I agree with Judge Lindsey entirely that there is nothing immoral about sex, and that young people should be encouraged to talk about it with their parents or older friends for help in solving their problems. Also, I believe, with him, in the single standard of morals for men and women. And as to the companionate marriage part, I, too, think that it is sometimes better for young people who are violently in love to marry, even though they may find later that they are not suited for life companionship. As to "outside relations," if you mean by that sex relations with other than the lawful wife or husband, I answer that from what I heard Judge Lindsey say he would agree with me that while we hear much of the inhibitions and complexes brought on by supressed emotions, not so much is made of what is equally true, that self-control and high moral standards lead to the finest self-development and a true happiness.

It's all too big a question to answer here. If you were to write me a personal letter, R. A. Y., I might amplify my views and you might give me some of your reactions.

To Blue Eyes I must say that I have no way of making her acquainted with a desirable male friend. Sorry.

If the others treat you sarcastically, "Doubtful Blue Eyes," go out with other young people for awhile. But are you sure you are not over sensitive?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: This summer two fellows that I met fell violently in love with me. Neither one knew about the other, nor does now. I correspond with both. This Christmas I went on a visit to another city and there met the boy I will ALWAYS love. He seemed to return my feelings, and, after I left he wrote me sweet, sweet letters. I had heard that he was crazy about a girl who lived in the town where he attended the university. I asked him about her when he first told me of his love, and he said they had fallen out and she didn't mean a thing to him. Recently I received a cold letter from him, and in it he said that he and his girl friend had made up. He says he is madly in love with this girl, and has given her his frat pin. He wants me to write him soon and often and be his friend.

"What can I do? Should I tell him I still love him, or not answer the letter, and wear one of those other fellow's frat pins? Would you go back to the town where he lives this summer, and if you did, would you expect a date with him? Do you think there's any chance of making him love ME, honestly? Gosh, if he doesn't, I just believe I'd like to die.

"Broken-Hearted."

If you're a "dead game little sport," Broken-Hearted, you'll write the boy and tell him that you were not "stringing" him, and that yuo think it was not right of him to write such letters to you when all the time he was in love with another girl. However, you are willing to let bygones be bygones, and you wish him joy with the girl he loves. Then don't write again. And don't wear another boy's pin unless you honestly are in love with him. That would be "stringing" him. You'll be happier knowing that you have done the square thing.

"United States to Meet Mexico at Tennis." Mr. Morrow will doubtless wish for a love match.

Diet and Health

Mucus Forming Foods and Wrong Combinations

P. — "Mucus forming foods" ideas and a lot of such scareheads about food explosions and disorders from harmful food combinations, such as starches with protein, starches with fruit, milk with fish or meat, etc., are most often propaganda of those who have some system of diet to sell; they want to impress on you that you must come to them to learn how to get your right combinations.

There are no foods that form mucus. An unbalanced diet, one that doesn't contain all the necessary elements needed for the body, will undermine its resistance and the mucus membranes as well as other organs will more easily contract infections. The mucus membranes in this case will be stimulated to an ever-secretion of mucus.

It is advisable to get your proportionate needs in each meal; that is, to have balanced meals; but in case you should want more of certain food at one meal at some time, so making the meal unbalanced, this is alright providing you make up the deficiencies in your other meals.

Many of the individual ideas of wrong combinations of foods come from distress caused by overeating, or bolting food, or eating at the wrong time, such as during anger or other strong emotion; or from those who have certain food idiosyncracies. For instance, some people cannot take eggs; they always act in a disagreeable manner with them. But the majority of people can take eggs. Some notice that with a certain combination, especially one with too much starch and sugar, they'll have an acid stomach, etc.

Naturally, these people have to avoid these foods of these combinations. The average person who doesn't overeat, and sees that he gets correct amounts of the different foods each day, can combine 'em any way he likes.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin with your request. This article gives a list of some good books on dietetics.

Broken Noses and Specialists' Fees

S. wants to know if I can tell her the approximate cost of having a broken nose straightened?

Work of this nature has to be done by a specialist in plastic surgery, S., and specialists have to charge more for their work, not only because their practice is limited, but because of the long years of extensive preparations. Usually specialists, as the general practitioners, modify their charges to the patient's income. The lawyer, you know, charges a larger fee for a case involving $100,000 than for a case that involves only $100, and the courts place a higher economic value on a man whose earning capacity is high if he is accidentally disabled or killed. I will quote from an article on the subject:

"When a poor man is restored to health and his earning capacity returned to him, the pyhsician has restored the ability to earn small wages or salary; if, on the other hand, a $50,000 a year man has been restored to health, the physician has restored to the man the ability to earn that amount of money each year. Regarding the services rendered as a commodity, is not this particular commodity infinitely more valuable financially to the one than to the other? Although the work done and time consumed in the treatment of the two cases does not vary, the price must carry with its economical value to the particular individual."

You see, S., it would be absolutely impossible for me to give you any idea of the cost.

Noses are straightened and other deformities very successfully repaired, and my advice to you would be to go to a specialist and tell him frankly your financial circumstances. Your improved happiness will be worth the money involved.

Tomorrow: Answers to Mothers.

NOTE:—Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope with orders for pamphlets on reducing and gaining.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Plenty of fruit is used in the menu for an entire day submitted. If the luncheon menu is not enough, maybe there would be a litteral cereal left from breakfast to add to it, or milk might be served instead of tea. Of course, if there was a guest, a hot dish could be served. Macaroni and cheese would be very good.

BREAKFAST
Orange Juice
Cooked Wheat Cereal Top Milk
Scrambled Eggs Crisp Toast
Cocoa

LUNCHEON
Date-Orange Salad Rye Bread
Fresh Cocoanut Cake

Date and Orange Salad — Fill stoned dates with a mixture of cream cheese and chopped walnuts. Alternate on a bed of shreddel lettuce with slices of orange and serve with French dressing.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Mar. 5.—Unadulterated free trade's lone advocate in congress, insofar as I'm aware, is Representative George Huddleston of Alabama.

There are tariff-reduction-ists and tariff-for-revenue-only-ites, and lots of other tariff modification brands, but they all hedge—some.

This little man from the industrial city of Birmingham—the last place in the south which you'd suppose would stand for such talk—is the only one I know of, with the nerve to come out for no tariff at all.

But even supposing he's right, in theory—

How get down, from our present high tariff perch, to the free trade earth?—without a crash.

"You touch," said the Birmingham congressman, in answer to this question, "on a very sensitive spot.

"It would amount to a revolution, certainly. During a revolution, however desirable the end, many people are likely literally to starve to death."

"I don't believe," continued Representative Huddleston, "that I'd favor destroying our protective system completely, at one stroke.

"I believe I'd begin with the tariff on the necessaries of life. And then the products of monopolies. Then the more modest comforts. Finally luxuries. Ultimately everything.

"Blowing up a dam is dangerous. It's better to take it down by degrees."

Very true.

Mixing our metaphors still a little more, suddenly to deprive an addict of his drug is to wreck his nerves. It's less disorganizing to his system to taper down gradually. Yet even that's anguish. It lasts longer, too.

"Besides which," supplemented the congressman, "he generally tapers up instead."

"However," he added, "in my opinion our tariff evils will automatically correct themselves in the course of 10 or 20 years.

"Hitherto, as our protected industrial have produced more and more, our population has been growing still faster, absorbing the industries' increasing output—absorbing it here, at home.

"Today, with our population more nearly stationary, our manufacturers are beginning to turn out a surplus, for which they need foreign markets. In such markets they find it hard to compete with exports from countries less inflated than the United States.

"Some of them are realizing this difficulty already. They'll all see it in time."

"New England's cotton mills feel the pinch," went on the representative. "Makers of the coarser fabrics are shutting down and moving south, to be nearer the source of raw supplies.

"My desk is covered with the propaganda of woolen manufacturers, in favor of a lower tariff on raw wool. They haven't reached the point of asking a reduction on the finished product yet, but they compete in foreign markets without cheaper raw material.

"Free trade's coming—in a decade or two."

A tariff for revenue?

"After all," rejoined Congressman Huddleston, "a revenue tariff's only a form of sales tax—the worst form.

"And quite unnecessary. The income tax supplies all the funds the government needs."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BEAUTY HABITS FOR THE PLASTIC AGE

There are certain habits of poise and posture which are all important to liviness. Beauty habits were inculcated into the youth of past generations. In the American pre-Revolutionary days, the very young girl was strapped to a stiff, unyielding board for an hour a day to cultivate the rigidly erect posture which was the sign of gentle birth and breeding. She walked miles across the polished boards of her schoolroom floor, balancing a book on her head, so that her poise and bearing might be "sans reproche."

She was taught the melody of a fluted, modulated voice, the importance of precision in speech, the simple facts of courteous bearing—all matters of exterior training, as you may notice!

Today, tennis, swimming and skating will bring the same physical strength and grace that was far less pleasantly achieved two hundred years ago.

In schools the cultivation of good posture has long been a subject for lectures, discussion and definite exercise. But while the high head and erect shoulders resulting are in themselves admirable and graceful, poise, which should alwayvs be developed along with correct posture, is frequently neglected.

If you have watched someone else's daughter shamble through the "awkward age," very often premanently sacrificing her charm to the dreadful "inferiority complex" resulting, you are more than willing to take definite preventive steps before the age dawns on your child. Rythmic exercise will develop bodily grace, and the cultivation of dancing or any social talent will speedily abolish self-consciousness.

I know one socially prominent mother who has taken her daughter to a fashionable hotel dining room once every month since she was 12. She has taught her to order wisely, to pour tea with a charming poise, to submit gracefully to the ministrations of the waiter and, in general, to conduct herself beautifully. I can assure you that she possesses, at 16, all the social arts of her lovely mother. She does not stumble and turn crimson with embarrassment when she enters a room, nor does she expect the slightest attention paid to her. She is utterly devoid of self-consciousness, and in consequence—utterly charming. The adolescent years are the habit-forming years.

It is during this period that the clever mother teaches her daughter to care for herself. She must learn the importance of the daily bath, of white, shining teeth, neatly-groomed hair, straight heels and even hemlines—all those habits of personal daintiness which makes for a lovely woman.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THRASHER GIVES ADVICE TO THE FARMER

"How do I like it, Brown Thrasher?" cried Peter. "Why, more than I can tell you! Your performance was wonderful! But, then, as far as that goes, so was Catbird's, and if I had my choice I should go to the concert Catbird gives instead of to yours every time. You are so conceited that it takes away much of the pleasure of listening to your singing."

"Don't you sass me, Boy, or I'll peck out your eye." Thrasher was angry indeed.

"Oh, no, you will not, Cousin," interrupted Catbird, quickly. "Not if I can help it, and I think I could. But what is the use of us scrapping on a beautiful day like this? Your voice is wonderful, every one knows that! And I sing well enough to suit myself, so why should either of us worry?"

"It is all very well for you to talk like that, Cousin!" exclaimed Brown Thrasher, "but you have not been spoken to as yet! I do not intend to stay here a moment longer. I have a very nervous disposition, as you well know, and I should thrash my tail off if I had to listen to any more insults from a Two-Legs. I shall save my voice next time for a more appreciative audience."

Darting an angry glance at Peter, back over the garden wall flew Brown Thrasher.

"Queer, but nothing that Cousin Thrasher says ever ruffles my feathers," remarked Catbird, gazing after him. "I don't care a bread crumb which of us sings the best! Odd though, it certainly does matter a lot to him."

"Yes, doesn't it," agreed the boy readily. "But, to change the subject, would you mind telling me what makes him lash about so with his tail?"

"That is a hard question to answer, friend. To tell you the truth I don't believe I ever heard." Catbird fluttered his wings with a thoughtful air. "I shouldn't wonder if Thrasher does that because he has such an excitable nature—nervous, as he told you. But of one thing I am very sure, that habit of his — and it is a family trait, he just can't keep his tail still—is what has given him his name, Thrasher. Now if you will excuse me, I think that I will leave you. It is some time since I have seen my little wife and I never like to be away from her for very long at a stretch."

Catbird was just about ready to make off when suddenly a voice from above their heads caused both the boy and the bird to look up.

"And that isn't all that I can do, either! You may not know it, boy, but I am general director in planting time. Why, if it was not for me I can't imagine what the farmers would do. 'Shuck it!

Shuck it!' cry I. And off from the cob come the kernels. 'Sow it! Plow it! Hoe it!' I tell the farmer what to do and Mr. Farmer does what I command him every time. I forgot to tell you this before, boy, I couldn't go away without having you know what a smart fellow I am."

Brown Thrasher, for it was he, cocked his head upon one side with an important air as much as if to say, "There, now are you satisfied that I am cleverer than Cousin Catbird?" Then without another word off he flew.

Peter laughed until the tears rolled down his cheeks. Brown Thrasher had appeared so unexpectedly and had looked so comical bobbing about on the top of the wall. Peter turned to speak to Catbird when, much to his astonishment, he found that jolly mocker had disappeared, too.

Xenia Central Crushes Troy In Tournament Tilt

"BIG BLUE" CAGERS SURVIVE OPENING ROUND DECISIVELY

Overwhelming 66 to 22 Victory Leaves Little Room For Doubt—Doak, Playing Only Two Periods, Registers 23 Points

By PHIL FRAME

XENIA CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL'S high-scoring basketball machine, functioning with clock-like precision, survived the first round of the Class A Southwestern Ohio regional basketball tournament at Dayton Saturday afternoon by burying Troy High School under an avalanche of shots to win a rousing 66 to 22 victory.

The Blue and White quintet will consequently meet Miamisburg High School in the quarter-finals Friday night at 7 o'clock since the Burgers advanced to the second round by eliminating Bellefrontaine 33 to 30. A victory over Miamisburg, considered likely, will place Xenia in the semi-finals with Stivers High as the probable opponent.

Xenia left no room for doubt in its triumph over Troy. Taking the lead after the first minute of play, Central piled up the count so fast that the Trojans were left far behind.

Led by Doak, who tallied twenty-three points, Xenia was so busy shooting baskets that Troy seldom got the ball and it is a proven fact that a team cannot shoot baskets without the ball to do it with.

Sixty-six points is the highest score recorded by a team in either division of the district tournament to date and is also more points than a Xenia team has scored in many a moon.

It certainly was a track meet. Defensive basketball was pushed in the background and as soon as the ball was tossed both teams made a concerted rush, bordering on a stampede, for the Troy goal, where Xenia baskets looped through the net with monotonous regularity.

At that, Coach Kolb's first team played intact in only the first and third quarters, substitutes mainly composing the lineup in the second and fourth periods.

Xenia led 19 to 3, the first quarter, 35 to 12 at the half and 59 to 16 in the third stanza.

Doak, shooting with marvelous accuracy under the basket, sank eleven field goals and one foul for twenty-three points, although playing in only two quarters. He scored nine points the first period and fourteen in the third.

Even Captain Clemans took a whirl at shooting for a change and was runnerup to Doak for scoring honors with eleven points. His floor game was also above the ordinary if such a thing is possible. Morton contributed eight points.

The reserve players also performed like veterans, Buell tallying seven points and Smittle nine. Gibney and Higgins gave remarkable defensive exhibitions and the former helped along with six points. Bell played a good floor game but was a little off when it came to shooting.

The contest, as you may have guessed by this time, was a complete walk-away for the Blue and White. The game soon turned into a question of how large the final score was to be.

Troy was bewildered and could do nothing to stem the tide. The Trojans scored principally from long range and at the foul line. Captain Counts topped his team with eight points followed by Hayner with six.

Xenia registered twenty-seven fielders and twelve fouls. Troy made eight baskets and six free throws. Toward the end of the game Troy lost two players on personal fouls.

Central never played in better form this season. It is extremely unlikely any team in the tourney could have beaten the Blue and White quintet as it was playing Saturday.

Xenia looks for a hard game with Miamisburg Friday but expects to win. Central defeated the Burgers on their own floor 29 to 21 earlier in the season. Stivers meets Fairview in the other quarter-final game in the same brackett and should win. The score:

Bowling

One change in the standing in both the Recreation and City Leagues resulted from league matches last week.

The Los Ramos Cigars finally climbed out of the cellar in the senior league and were replaced by the Studebaker Commanders. The margin between the two teams is a lone percentage point.

In the City League, the rejuvenated Red Wing Co., ousted the Brown Furniture Co. from second place and is entrenched none too firmly in the runnerup position by a scant half game.

Schedule this week: Monday—Fords vs. Studebaker Commanders at 6:30; Buicks vs. Los Ramos Cigars at 8:30. Tuesday— Greene County Lumber Co. vs. Lang Transfers at 7:30. Thursday — Downtown Country Club vs. Browns at 6:30; Red Wings vs. Chrysler Motors at 8:30.

Standing in the Recreation League follows:

| Team. | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gr. Co. L. Co. | 46 | 23 | .666 |
| Fords | 40 | 25 | .615 |
| Lang Transfers | 37 | 31 | .544 |
| Buicks | 31 | 38 | .449 |
| Los Ramos | 24 | 42 | .363 |
| Studebakers | 25 | 44 | .362 |

Standing in the City League follows:

| Team. | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| D. T. C. Club | 40 | 20 | .666 |
| Red Wings | 30 | 27 | .526 |
| Browns | 28 | 26 | .518 |
| Chryslers | 13 | 37 | .260 |

POLICE FIND RACE TICKETS IN RAID

Fred Heiser, 35, this city, proprietor of a pool and billiard parlor, N. Detroit St., faces a probable gambling charge following his arrest by police Saturday afternoon.

He was released on his own recognizance pending arraignment Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. No charge has yet been filed.

Patrolman Charles Thompson and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, raided the pool room Saturday in search of liquor but found instead a number of race horse form sheets, tickets and other racing data, they reported.

Heiser, police say, readily admitted that he was engaged in taking bets on race horses.

TRIES COME BACK

NEW YORK, March 5.—Battling Levinsky, wh lost his light heavyweight title to Gene Tunney in 1922, tonight makes his first ring appearance here in six years. He will take on Earl Blue, of St. Paul, in a six round bout.

SIGNS CONTRACT

NEW YORK, March 5.—James J. Johnston has signed a five-year contract to manage Pete Latzo, former world's welterweight champion. Johnston, who also holds an interest in Jack Sharkey and Mike McTigue, hopes to match Latzo with Mickey Walker, middleweight champion.

LOST HIS CLOTHES

TIFFIN, O., March 5.—William Nelson, 22-year-old Seneca farmer, today is searching for his clothing, lost yesterday in a gasoline explosion. Nelson, according to reports, was working under his auto when his clothing became saturated with gasoline. Nelson became chilled and stepped near a stove. An explosion followed, leaving Nelson very close to nature, and sending his clothes to parts unknown. Nelson was warmed but uninjured.

SPRINGFIELD TEAM LEADS BOWLERS

SUN ENTERTAINERS LEADING FIVE-MAN DIVISION OF MEET

Lang Transfers In Second; New Two-Man Leaders Also

CRASHING the maples for a three-game total of 2,853, Gus Sun's Entertainers, leading Springfield bowling team, assumed the leadership of the five-man division of the bowling tournament in progress at the Recreation Parlors Saturday.

The Reaper City quintet put together games of 886, 968 and 999.

Lang Transfers, of the Xenia Recreation League, rolled into second place Saturday with a score of 2,767. A poor first game cost the local quintet possible leadership of the tourney. Langs rolled games of 837, 913 and 1,017. They exceeded the 1,000 mark in the last game due to a sensational 267 game bowled by Lee Regan, anchor man. This is the second highest single game of the tournament.

Tournament play Saturday also produced new leaders in the doubles and all-events. Harms and Smeltzer, Springfield two-man team, hit the maples for 1,207. Kitchen and Simpson, of the same team, took fourth place with 1,147.

Xenia bowlers failed to dislodge the leaders in the two-man class. Fred Horner and W. C. Horner rolled 1,105 and H. Jordan and L. Regan bowled 1,036.

One change was made in the standing in the singles when Smeltzer, Springfield, took second place with a series of 610.

Smeltzer took the lead in the all-events with 1,865 for his nine games. He rolled 616 in the five-man match, 639 in the doubles and 610 in the singles. Lee Regan took fifth place in the all-events with 1,735. He had 646 in the five-man match, 517 in the doubles and 572 in the singles.

QUITS CREW

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 5.—Francis Pershing's action in withdrawing from the freshman crew at Yale was taken at the request of his father, General John J. Pershing, it was learned today.

The commander of the A. E. F. in the World War is said to believe that the exertion might prove too much for his son.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

A Cleveland player will be taught fencing in the hopes that it will impove his batting eye. Not a bad idea, as that is the only way a lot of rookies would ever be able to see the point.

But fencing has its dangerous points. Imagine the catastrophe of a $50 rookie puncturing Babe Ruth. The explosion would wreck the Yankee ball club in more ways than one.

Good fencers are said to be the most modest of athletes though dreadfully stuck up.

Fencing is a lively discussion carried on by two human pin cushions with the use of exaggerated needles.

CENTRAL JUNIORS FAIL IN TOURNEY

Central Junior High School was eliminated by Washington C. H., Juniors 12 to 11 in the semi-final round of the annual Junior High Basketball Tournament conducted at McClain High School, Greenfield Saturday.

Central Juniors were leading by one point until the last few seconds of play when a Washington player slipped through the defense for a basket that spelled defeat.

It was a heart-breaker for Coach Patterson's boys to lose after surviving the first round by virtue of a clean-cut victory over McClain Juniors.

RICKARD FAVORS ONLY ONE BATTLE

NEW YORK, March 5.— Although Gene Tunney wants to defend his heavyweight laurels in June and again in September, promoter Tex Rickard professed to be convinced today that only one title bout can be held this year. Rickard said he would attempt to bring the champion to this viewpoint when he goes into a huddle with him at Miami next week.

Rickard favors September as the date for a bout between Tunney and the winner of the elimination tournament now in progress.

HEADS-UP!-THAT'S THE WAY THEY BEAT TROY

CAPT. CLEMANS MORTON DOAK GIBNEY HIGGINS

Central High basketteers played "heads-up" basketball at the Dayton Fairgrounds coliseum Saturday to defeat Troy High 66 to 22 and survive the first round of the sectional tourney that is fore-runner of the state championship meet. Fans say these boys used their heads so well during the afternoon's pastiming that they were ahead of Troy at the start and were never headed. Fans agreed the team could have beaten any entrant in the tournament playing like it did Saturday. The team plays its second-round contest with Miamisburg this week.

WILL ADVERTISE SOON FOR BIDS FOR STATE FISH HATCHERY HERE

Bids for the proposed state fish hatchery to be constructed on the Dr. D. E. Spahr property, north of Xenia on the Springfield Pike, are to be advertised soon, according to Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture.

Plans for the hatchery have been approved by the state director and it is expected that work will be commenced as soon as possible.

The new fishery is to be located on an old waterworks site. A macadam road will lead from the main highway to the hatchery, which will have six pools, comprising about two acres of water and fed by springs.

The water is to be eight feet deep in pools No. 2, 3, 4 and 5. In pools No. 1 and 6, the water will be four and one half feet deep.

The division banks between pools are to be of earth. An individual draining system is to be provided for each pool. Later it is planned to add four additional pools to the hatchery.

It is estimated that the hatchery when completed will produce nearly 1,000,000 fry each season and that it will serve the needs of at least twelve neighboring counties.

HERE'S SURE SIGN

L. E. Oldham, New Burlington Pike, has all confidence that spring is just around the corner. Mr. Oldham saw two bluebirds near his home Monday morning and declares that is a sure sign that open and fair weather is on the way.

Quality Is Our Failure Insurance

A successful merchant once said that he considered honesty the greatest single factor for success in retailing. "Build integrity into your business" he advised, "and you not only safeguard it but your contribution to the community you live in is immeasurable."

Wise words! And that is one of the reasons why we pay so much attention to the quality of the goods we sell. It is so easy to skimp on a lining, or substitute inferior leather in the inner sole of a shoe. But then we would not be running an honest business, and it would gradually crumble into ruins.

Selling honest merchandise at a fair price is more than an ideal with us. It is our "insurance policy" against failure—

Xenia Central Crushes Troy In Tournament Tilt

"BIG BLUE" CAGERS SURVIVE OPENING ROUND DECISIVELY

Overwhelming 66 to 22 Victory Leaves Little Room For Doubt—Doak, Playing Only Two Periods, Registers 23 Points

By PHIL FRAME

XENIA CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL'S high-scoring basketball machine, functioning with clock-like precision, survived the first round of the Class A Southwestern Ohio regional basketball tournament at Dayton Saturday afternoon by burying Troy High School under an avalanche of shots to win a rousing 66 to 22 victory.

The Blue and White quintet will consequently meet Miamisburg High School in the quarter-finals Friday night at 7 o'clock since the Burgers advanced to the second round by eliminating Bellefrontaine 33 to 30. A victory over Miamisburg, considered likely, will place Xenia in the semi-finals with Stivers High as the probable opponent.

Xenia left no room for doubt in its triumph over Troy. Taking the lead after the first minute of play, Central piled up the count so fast that the Trojans were left far behind.

Led by Doak, who tallied twenty-three points, Xenia was so busy shooting baskets that Troy seldom got the ball and it is a proven fact that a team cannot shoot baskets without the ball to do it with.

Sixty-six points is the highest score recorded by a team in either division of the district tournament to date and is also more points than a Xenia team has scored in many a moon.

It certainly was a track meet. Defensive basketball was pushed in the background and as soon as the ball was tossed both teams made a concerted rush, bordering on a stampede, for the Troy goal, where Xenia baskets looped through the net with monotonous regularity.

At that, Coach Kolb's first team played intact in only the first and third quarters, substitutes mainly composing the lineup in the second and fourth periods.

Xenia led 19 to 3, the first quarter, 35 to 12 at the half and 59 to 16 in the third stanza.

Doak, shooting with marvelous accuracy under the basket, sank eleven field goals and one foul for twenty-three points, although playing in only two quarters. He scored nine points the first period and fourteen in the third.

Even Captain Clemans took a whirl at shooting for a change and was runnerup to Doak for scoring honors with eleven points. His floor game was also above the ordinary if such a thing is possible. Morton contributed eight points.

The reserve players also performed like veterans, Buell tallying seven points and Smittle nine. Gibney and Higgins gave remarkable defensive exhibitions and the former helped along with six points. Bell played a good floor game but was a little off when it came to shooting.

The contest, as you may have guessed by this time, was a complete walk-away for the Blue and White. The game soon turned into a question of how large the final score was to be.

Troy was bewildered and could do nothing to stem the tide. The Trojans scored principally from long range and at the foul line. Captain Counts topped his team with eight points followed by Hayner with six.

Xenia registered twenty-seven fielders and twelve fouls. Troy made eight baskets and six free throws. Toward the end of the game Troy lost two players on personal fouls.

Central never played in better form this season. It is extremely unlikely any team in the tourney could have beaten the Blue and White quintet as it was playing Saturday.

Xenia looks for a hard game with Miamisburg Friday but expects to win. Central defeated the Burgers on their own floor 29 to 21 earlier in the season. Stivers meets Fairview in the other quarter-final game in the same brackett and should win. The score:

Bowling

One change in the standing in both the Recreation and City Leagues resulted from league matches last week.

The Los Ramos Cigars finally climbed out of the cellar in the senior league and were replaced by the Studebaker Commanders. The margin between the two teams is a lone percentage point.

In the City League, the rejuvenated Red Wing Co., ousted the Brown Furniture Co. from second place and is entrenched none too firmly in the runnerup position by a scant half game.

Schedule this week: Monday—Fords vs. Studebaker Commanders at 6:30; Buicks vs. Los Ramos Cigars at 8:30. Tuesday— Greene County Lumber Co. vs. Lang Transfers at 7:30. Thursday — Downtown Country Club vs. Browns at 6:30; Red Wings vs. Chrysler Motors at 8:30.

Standing in the Recreation League follows:

| Team. | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gr. Co. L. Co. | 46 | 23 | .666 |
| Fords | 40 | 25 | .615 |

POLICE FIND RACE TICKETS IN RAID

Fred Heiser, 35, this city, proprietor of a pool and billiard parlor, N. Detroit St., faces a probable gambling charge following his arrest by police Saturday afternoon.

He was released on his own recognizance pending arraignment Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. No charge has yet been filed.

Patrolman Charles Thompson and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, raided the pool room Saturday in search of liquor but found instead a number of race horse form sheets, tickets and other racing data, they reported.

Heiser, police say, readily admitted that he was engaged in taking bets on race horses.

TRIES COME BACK

NEW YORK, March 5.—Battling Levinsky, wh lost his light heavyweight title to Gene Tunney in 1922, tonight makes his first ring appearance here in six years. He will take on Earl Blue, of St. Paul, in a six round bout.

SIGNS CONTRACT

NEW YORK, March 5.—James J. Johnston has signed a five-year contract to manage Pete Latzo, former world's welterweight champion. Johnston, who also holds an interest in Jack Sharkey and Mike McTigue, hopes to match Latzo with Mickey Walker, middleweight champion.

LOST HIS CLOTHES

TIFFIN, O., March 5.—William Nelson, 22-year-old Seneca farmer, today is searching for his clothing, lost yesterday in a gasoline explosion. Nelson, according to reports, was working under his auto when his clothing became saturated with gasoline. Nelson became chilled and stepped near a stove. An explosion followed, leaving Nelson very close to nature, and sending his clothes to parts unknown. Nelson was warmed but uninjured.

QUITS CREW

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 5.—Francis Pershing's action in withdrawing from the freshman crew at Yale was taken at the request of his father, General John J. Pershing, it was learned today.

The commander of the A. E. F. in the World War is said to believe that the exertion might prove too much for his son.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

A Cleveland player will be taught fencing in the hopes that it will impove his batting eye. Not a bad idea, as that is the only way a lot of rookies would ever be able to see the point.

But fencing has its dangerous points. Imagine the catastrophe of a $50 rookie puncturing Babe Ruth. The explosion would wreck the Yankee ball club in more ways than one.

Good fencers are said to be the most modest of athletes though dreadfully stuck up.

* * *

Fencing is a lively discussion carried on by two human pin cushions with the use of exaggerated needles.

CENTRAL JUNIORS FAIL IN TOURNEY

Central Junior High School was eliminated by Washington C. H., Juniors 12 to 11 in the semi-final round of the annual Junior High Basketball Tournament conducted at McClain High School, Greenfield Saturday.

Central Juniors were leading by one point until the last few seconds of play when a Washington player slipped through the defense for a basket that spelled defeat.

It was a heart-breaker for Coach Patterson's boys to lose after surviving the first round by virtue of a clean-cut victory over McClain Juniors.

SPRINGFIELD TEAM LEADS BOWLERS

SUN ENTERTAINERS LEADING FIVE-MAN DIVISION OF MEET

Lang Transfers In Second; New Two-Man Leaders Also

CRASHING the maples for a three-game total of 2,853, Gus Sun's Entertainers, leading Springfield bowling team, assumed the leadership of the five-man division of the bowling tournament in progress at the Recreation Pariors Saturday.

The Reaper City quintet put together games of 886, 968 and 999.

Lang Transfers, of the Xenia Recreation League, rolled into second place Saturday with a score of 2,767. A poor first game cost the local quintet possible leadership of the tourney. Langs rolled games of 837, 913 and 1,017. They exceeded the 1,000 mark in the last game due to a sensational 267 game bowled by Lee Regan, anchor man. This is the second highest single game of the tournament.

Tournament play Saturday also produced new leaders in the doubles and all-events. Harms and Smeltzer, Springfield two-man team, hit the maples for 1,207. Kitchen and Simpson, of the same team, took fourth place with 1,147.

Xenia bowlers failed to dislodge the leaders in the two-man class. Fred Horner and W. C. Horner rolled 1,105 and H. Jordan and L. Regan bowled 1,036.

One change was made in the standing in the singles when Smeltzer, Springfield, took second place with a series of 610.

Smeltzer took the lead in the all-events with 1,865 for his nine games. He rolled 616 in the five-man match, 639 in the doubles and 610 in the singles. Lee Regan took fifth place in the all-events with 1,735. He had 646 in the five-man match, 517 in the doubles and 572 in the singles.

RICKARD FAVORS ONLY ONE BATTLE

NEW YORK, March 5.— Although Gene Tunney wants to defend his heavyweight laurels in June and again in September, promoter Tex Rickard professed to be convinced today that only one title bout can be held this year. Rickard said he would attempt to bring the champion to this viewpoint when he goes into a huddle with him at Miami next week.

Rickard favors September as the date for a bout between Tunney and the winner of the elimination tournament now in progress.

HEADS-UP!-THAT'S THE WAY THEY BEAT TROY

CAPT. CLEMANS MORTON DOAK GIBNEY HIGGINS

Central High basketteers played "heads-up" basketball at the Dayton Fairgrounds coliseum Saturday to defeat Troy High 66 to 22 and survive the first round of the sectional tourney that is fore-runner of the state championship meet. Fans say these boys used their heads so well during the afternoon's pastiming that they were ahead of Troy at the start and were never headed. Fans agreed the team could have beaten any entrant in the tournament playing like it did Saturday. The team plays its second-round contest with Miamisburg this week.

WILL ADVERTISE SOON FOR BIDS FOR STATE FISH HATCHERY HERE

Bids for the proposed state fish hatchery to be constructed on the Dr. D. E. Spahr property, north of Xenia on the Springfield Pike, are to be advertised soon, according to Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture.

Plans for the hatchery have been approved by the state director and it is expected that work will be commenced as soon as possible.

The new fishery is to be located on an old waterworks site. A macadam road will lead from the main highway to the hatchery, which will have six pools, comprising about two acres of water and fed by springs.

The water is to be eight feet deep in pools No. 2, 3, 4 and 5. In pools No. 1 and 6, the water will be four and one half feet deep.

The division banks between pools are to be of earth. An individual draining system is to be provided for each pool. Later it is planned to add four additional pools to the hatchery.

It is estimated that the hatchery when completed will produce nearly 1,000,000 fry each season and that it will serve the needs of at least twelve neighboring counties.

HERE'S SURE SIGN

L. E. Oldham, New Burlington Pike, has all confidence that spring is just around the corner. Mr. Oldham saw two bluebirds near his home Monday morning and declares that is a sure sign that open and fair weather is on the way.

Quality Is Our Failure Insurance

A successful merchant once said that he considered honesty the greatest single factor for success in retailing. "Build integrity into your business" he advised, "and you not only safeguard it but your contribution to the community you live in is immeasurable."

Wise words! And that is one of the reasons why we pay so much attention to the quality of the goods we sell. It is so easy to skimp on a lining, or substitute inferior leather in the inner sole of a shoe. But then we would not be running an honest business, and it would gradually crumble into ruins.

Selling honest merchandise at a fair price is more than an ideal with us. It is our "insurance policy" against failure—

ELKS TO REMODEL LODGE HOME HERE

Proceeds of the benefit motion picture show, sponsored by Xenia Lodge, No. 668, B. P. O. E. at the Orphium Theater Friday afternoon and evening, will be used to finance remodeling of the interior of the Elks' lodge, Second and Whiteman Sts.

The feature picture of the benefit was entitled "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris," a Universal-William Beaudine production, co-featuring George Sidney and J. Farrel MacDonald in the title roles.

The entire cast proved to be of stellar quality. The story is a sequel to "The Cohens and Kellys," one of the most successful pictures produced, and reaches the extremes of mirth.

A two-reel comedy preceded the feature picture.

INVENTOR, BACKER DEFEND MOTOR

Lester J. Hendershot, left, inventor of what he describes as the fuelless motor, and D. Barr Peat, his business representative, posing especially for Central Press cameraman at the McKeesport, Pa., flying field near Pittsburgh, defend attacks upon the motor. "The last model of my motor was built at Washington under the supervision of army officers," Hendershot, who lives at West Elizabeth, Pa. says. "I merely directed the general ideas of construction. I've had to watch my step because there were people who wanted to steal my ideas and the result of my efforts." F. W. Hochstetter, of the Hochstetter Research laboratories, Pittsburgh, averred in a statement that Hendershot resorted to trickery to make his "magnetic-energy motor" run. Hendershot said he faked a model constructed under the eyes of Hochstetter as a trap for persons who had been tampering with his work.

AUTO WRECKED ON PIKE; THREE HURT

Clarence Simpson, 18, son of a Waynesville auto dealer and two other Waynesville youths, one named Middildine, escaped with minor cuts and bruises when a coupe driven by Simpson, skidded on the Cincinnati Pike, one-half mile from the Xenia corporation line, Sunday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock.

The automobile was completely wrecked. The youths extricated themselves from the wreckage and were taken to Waynesville by passersby.

The accident happened when the machine skidded on the curve in the road, while driven at a fast rate of speed.

OHIO RANKS SECOND IN MANUFACTURE OF GOOD SWISS CHEESE

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—The state of Ohio ranks second in the Swiss cheese manufacturing industry of the United States, according to Prof. R. B. Stoltz of the department of agriculture at the Ohio State University.

Wisconsin is first in production but Ohioans claim the best quality. The slogan of the Ohio Swiss Cheese Association is "Second in quantity, but first in quality."

More than two million pounds of Swiss cheese are manufactured in Ohio annually. Most of it comes from Holmes, Tuscarawas and eastern Ohio counties, though in reality a huge cold storage plant at Sugar Creek is the center of the Buckeye state's cheese industry. Cheese made in Ohio is shipped to New York City in carload lots.

Each year the Ohio Swiss Cheese Association holds a convention at Sugar Creek. All of the entertainment at the convention is of a Swiss character. Swing-fests, a form of wrestling, are held. Yodeling is featured. Accordian music, typical of the Alpine country can be heard at all hours during the day.

One of the interesting points in the manufacture of Swiss cheese is the putting of eyes or holes in it. This is important, for a piece of cheese is judged by the number of eyes—the more eyes, the better the price. The eyes are put into cheese by mixing a quantity of substance known to dairymen as "eye-culture" or "No. 62" with the milk intended for cheese.

The manufacture of cottage cheese holds a secure place in dairy farming. But the production of cottage cheese is not considered as an industry in itself.

It is rather a by-product from the surplus of dairy products, Professor Stoltz points out.

Professor Stoltz declares that nutrition in cheese is very high, and that contrary to the general belief cheese is not harmful nor in any way injurious to the digestive system.

Swiss and cottage cheeses are recommended as substitutes for meat in a bulletin published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The bulletin states that one pound of American cheese contains as much protein as 1.57 pounds of sirloin steak and on the basis of energy supplied a pound of cheese equals 1.98 pounds of the steak.

Cottage cheese, however, does not rank as high as Swiss cheese as a food or a meat substitute.

The manufacture of cheese in Ohio, it is said, is gradually increasing and according to present indications Ohio's cheese industry will reach the four million pound mark during the present year.

DISCOVER VITAMIN "F"; SCIENTISTS VISUALIZE EFFECT

tion commercially of the various vitamins, as well as to the eventual isolation of a long line of new health givers.

"Visualizing the ideal in medical science we would have a vitamin to cure every deficiency of mankind," Dr. Cajigas said, "and in another phase of medicine agencies for destroying every germ which afflicts the human body."

"The vitamins are potent foods—powerful health producers. The physician of the future undoubtedly by diagnosis will determine exactly wherein his patient is deficient—he will have available synthetically made vitamins which may be used exactly as are drugs today."

While thousands of scientists are studying the chemical components of the vitamin group their synthetic reproduction is so far only in the experimental stage. There apparently is a wide divergency of opinion among investigators as to the chemical constituents of vitamins.

The new vitamin F, while reported to be a stimulator of the sex nature of animals probably is not the "it' vitamin. "E" likewise has some "it" elements, Dr. Evans having found that "sterility is a dietary deficiency disease for it can be cured or prevented by a change in dietary regime, a change involving the addition of certain natural foodstuffs high in vitamin "E."

Scientists see in the vitamins of the future the possible cure of all "deficiency diseases." These range from a peculiar eye disease, xerophthalmia, beri-beri, rickets, scurvy and possibly pellagra, down to the deficiency of sex-lessness common both in animal and man.

Even in the higher forms of deficiency —the lack of personality, inability to co-ordinate body and mind, lack of comprehension of situations, absence of intellect that is represented in the moron and idiot—may be prevented by some vitamin of the future.

"It may be going too far," one scientist remarked, "to say that absence of psychic power in the average human is a deficiency. But it is said that cats are psychic. Perhaps the 'psychic ray' may be isolated in the cat. Who knows?"

The study that led to discovery of the "accessory food factors," termed vitamins, began with an investigation of beri-beri, a deficiency disease long known in the Orient.

In 1912 vitamin A was isolated, but little is even yet known as to it chemical properties. The eye disease of xerophthalmia results from lack of vitamin A, and its treatment is found in cod liver oil and butter fats.

Vitamin B is appetite-provoking and growth producing, and its absence results in beri-beri. Its principal sources are in yeast, seeds of certain plants, fruits, nuts, and vegetables. It is found in liver as is the new vitamin F. "C" is the anti-scorbutic vitamin and citrus fruits, containing this element, have been used to cure scurvy.

Vitamin D, is anti-rachitic, a preventative of the common child disease, rickets.

The reproducing factor of vitamin E is believed to be present in green leaves, such as alfalfa, lettuce, peas, and tea. Some scientists question that there is a specific vitamin which has to do with reproduction, suggesting that the deficiency often attributed to lack of "E" may be due to an insufficient supply of "B". The same point may be raised in relation to the F vitamin.

WINS AWARD

Frank J. Prince, former reporter on an Indianapolis, Ind., newspaper, has been named winner of a $1,000 cash award for the most outstanding work of a Hoosier reporter in the field of politics in 1927. Prince conducted an investigation which resulted in the indictment of Governor Ed Jackson on a charge of attempted bribery and in the unearthing of political corruption in Indiana.

FRIENDSHIP BAGS EXHIBITED AT MEET

The "friendship school bag," both front and back of which are pictured here, was exhibited to local church women at their interdenominational county conference Monday afternoon at the Presbyterian Church.

The bags have been especially designed for use in the new "goodwill project" toward the children of Mexico, sponsored in Ohio as a part of a nation-wide program by the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches. The local meeting was held under the auspices of this state committee and the bag was brought here by the committee's representative, Mrs. McD. Howsare of Dayton.

Plans of the Ohio Committee and the National Committee on World Friendship Among Children call for the sending of thousands of these bags, equipped with such small gifts as toys, marbles, games, flower seeds and other goodwill tokens to Mexico this spring as a demonstration of the friendship of the children of the United States for those of Mexico.

The state committee is asking the local women to organize along interdenominational lines for participation in this and other forms of inter-church co-operation.

In a similar demonstration of goodwill toward the children of Japan a year ago, Ohio led all other states in the number of "doll messengers of friendship" equipped and sent. Of the nation-wide total of 13,000 dolls, 2,500 went from Ohio.

Arrangements for the conference here were directed by Mrs. J. P. White.

Radio Revue

BY C. KAY

NEW YORK, March 5.—"What is the cause of most of the complaints you are sent to investigate?" I, the "trouble man" for a radio shop catering to folks in the Fashionable Fifties was asked.

"The equipment isn't at fault as often as the persons themselves," he replied. "I don't mean that most persons are dumb about the proper handling of sets. What I refer to is the wide variance in their auditory powers.

"Loud speakers cause a lot of complaints, for instance. A man goes into the store, selects a set or a new loud-speaker, listens to it, likes the way it brings programs in, and orders it sent out. Installed in his home, with his wife, the children and possibly others listening in, it still brings music or speeches in to suit him, but doesn't please the others. Possibly Feeble Aunt Milly can't hear very well. Maybe his wife, a discriminating music lover, misses all the low notes. She, of course, blames it on the loudspeaker or the set.

"Many people complain of the lack of low notes, entirely overlooking the possibility that perhaps their ears are not sensitive to these low notes until a certain amplitude is reached, which amplitude is ofttimes not available in actual reception."

The "trouble man" went on to explain how other individual limitations affected enjoyment of sets and frequently resulted in complaints. All of these complaints are in this particular shop, given immediate and thorough attention, as the proprietor has built up his exclusive trade on the basis of "complete satisfaction with the set as long as you have it guaranteed." Reverting to the matter of the loudspeaker, the "trouble man" further explained:

"The ear is a very poor, final judge of the performance of a loud speaker. It is lacking where amplitude is concerned, and it varies in receptivity according to individual fancy, that is, it is a highly nervous organ. In other words, the ear is prejudiced against certain sounds before it hears them. Undoubtedly the human ear is more responsive to certain audio frequencies than to others."

In face-to-face conversation we can anticipate words and phrases, all of which aids us in comprehending what is said. Over the air we must trust our ears alone—organs which are far from infallible.

It is charged by the state that Velma was the "life of the party," although Velma herself denied that in her interview with this correspondent. Velma did play and sing—such songs as "Missing You Dear' 'and "I'm Tired and Lonely for Home."

Velma stayed all that night at Miss Young's home and was arrested the next day. In the statement obtained Sunday by the sheriff from Miss Young, the Cleveland stenographer said she and Velma on several occasions motored to Perry on-the-lake and enjoyed themselves swimming. She said Velma was greatly attached to her.

For the first time, the sheriff today disclosed in detail how he obtained the murder confession from Velma and his deductions as the result of close observation of Velma for weeks in the county jail.

"The day of the killing she and her husband had been to Painesville shopping. They got home to Perry about 5:30. The evening paper had just been delivered. West parked the car out in front, took the paper off the porch and went upstairs to the bedroom to read it.

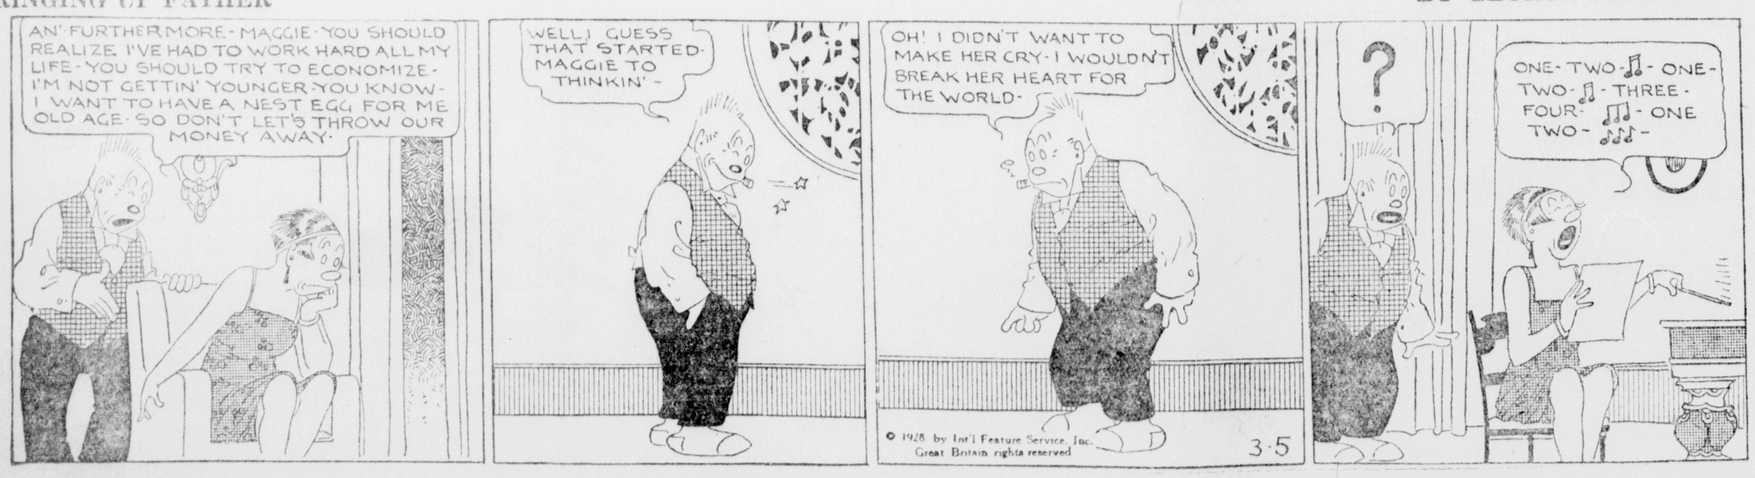

"Velma wasn't in any too good humor. Her husband had refused to drive her to Cleveland so she could attend the bridge party. She followed him up to the bedroom. I believe that at this point she asked him for the keys to the car and he refused. This enraged her and she picked up the hammer, which she had been using earlier in the day to fix a curtain, and struck him on the head. He tried to rise. She struck him again, and again—six times or more. He rose to a half crouching position on four or five occasions. Finally he fell on his face. She took a pillow slip and put it over his head. Then she smashed several other blows on his forehead. She reached into his pocket and pulled forth a bandana handkerchief and the keys for the car.

"When I looked at the body next morning the handkerchief had slipped down around his chin. She evidently had tried to gag him. He may have been moaning.

"She took a finger nail clipper and snipped off some twine. I found a piece of hemp on the clipper. She tied his hands and feet with the twine and left him, face down, on the floor. She went to the pump in the kitchen and washed her hands. She took off her bloody clothes and burned them in the furnace.

"Velma then went out to where the car was parked, unlocked it and drove to the home of Miss Moore."

Swiss and cottage cheeses are recommended as substitutes for meat in a bulletin published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The bulletin states that one pound of American cheese contains as much protein as 1.57 pounds of sirloin steak and on the basis of energy supplied a pound of cheese equals 1.98 pounds of the steak.

Cottage cheese, however, does not rank as high as Swiss cheese as a food or a meat substitute.

The manufacture of cheese in Ohio, it is said, is gradually increasing and according to present indications Ohio's cheese industry will reach the four million pound mark during the present year.

DISCOVER VITAMIN "F"; SCIENTISTS VISUALIZE EFFECT

tion commercially of the various vitamins, as well as to the eventual isolation of a long line of new health givers.

"Visualizing the ideal in medical science we would have a vitamin to cure every deficiency of mankind," Dr. Cajigas said, "and in another phase of medicine agencies for destroying every germ which afflicts the human body."

"The vitamins are potent foods—powerful health producers. The physician of the future undoubtedly by diagnosis will determine exactly wherein his patient is deficient—he will have available synthetically made vitamins which may be used exactly as are drugs today."

While thousands of scientists are studying the chemical components of the vitamin group their synthetic reproduction is so far only in the experimental stage. There apparently is a wide divergency of opinion among investigators as to the chemical constituents of vitamins.

The new vitamin F, while reported to be a stimulator of the sex nature of animals probably is not the "it" vitamin. "E" likewise has some "it" elements. Dr. Evans having found that "sterility is a dietary deficiency disease for it can be cured or prevented by a change in dietary regime, a change involving the addition of certain natural foodstuffs high in vitamin "E."

Scientists see in the vitamins of the future the possible cure of all "deficiency diseases." These range from a peculiar eye disease, xerophthalmia, beri-beri, rickets, scurvy and possibly pellagra, down to the deficiency of sex-lessness common both in animal and man.

Even in the higher forms of deficiency—the lack of personality, inability to co-ordinate body and mind, lack of comprehension of situations, absence of intellect that is represented in the moron and idiot—may be prevented by some vitamin of the future.

"It may be going too far," one scientist remarked, "to say that absence of psychic power in the average human is a deficiency. But it is said that cats are psychic. Perhaps the 'psychic ray' may be isolated in the cat. Who knows?"

The study that led to discovery of the "accessory food factors," termed vitamins, began with an investigation of beri-beri, a deficiency disease long known in the Orient.

In 1912 vitamin A was isolated, but little is even yet known as to it chemical properties. The eye disease of xerophthalmia results from lack of vitamin A, and its treatment is found in cod liver oil and butter fats.

Vitamin B is appetite-provoking and growth producing, and its absence results in beri-beri. Its principal sources are in yeast, seeds of certain plants, fruits, nuts, and vegetables. It is found in liver as is the new vitamin F. "C" is the anti-scorbutic vitamin and citrus fruits, containing this element, have been used to cure scurvy.

Vitamin D, is anti-rachitic, a preventative of the common child disease, rickets.

The reproducing factor of vitamin E is believed to be present in green leaves, such as alfalfa, lettuce, peas, and tea. Some scientists question that there is a specific vitamin which has to do with reproduction, suggesting that the deficiency often attributed to lack of "E" may be due to an insufficient supply of "B". The same point may be raised in relation to the F vitamin.

WINS AWARD

Frank J. Prince, former reporter on an Indianapolis, Ind., newspaper, has been named winner of a $1,000 cash award for the most outstanding work of a Hoosier reporter in the field of politics in 1927. Prince conducted an investigation which resulted in the indictment of Governor Ed Jackson on a charge of attempted bribery and in the unearthing of political corruption in Indiana.

FRIENDSHIP BAGS EXHIBITED AT MEET

The "friendship school bag," both front and back of which are pictured here, was exhibited to local church women at their interdenominational county conference Monday afternoon at the Presbyterian Church.

The bags have been especially designed for use in the new "goodwill project" toward the children of Mexico, sponsored in Ohio as a part of a nation-wide program by the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches. The local meeting was held under the auspices of this state committee and the bag was brought here by the committee's representative, Mrs. McD. Howsare of Dayton.

Plans of the Ohio Committee and the National Committee on World Friendship Among Children call for the sending of thousands of these bags, equipped with such small gifts as toys, marbles, games, flower seeds and other goodwill tokens to Mexico this spring as a demonstration of the friendship of the children of the United States for those of Mexico.

The state committee is asking the local women to organize along interdenominational lines for participation in this and other forms of inter-church co-operation.

In a similar demonstration of goodwill toward the children of Japan a year ago, Ohio led all other states in the number of "doll messengers of friendship" equipped and sent. Of the nation-wide total of 13,000 dolls, 2,500 went from Ohio.

Arrangements for the conference here were directed by Mrs. J. P. White.

Radio Revue

BY C. KAY

NEW YORK, March 5.—"What is the cause of most of the complaints you are sent to investigate?" I, the "trouble man" for a radio shop catering to folks in the Fashionable Fifties was asked.

"The equipment isn't at fault as often as the persons themselves," he replied. "I don't mean that most persons are dumb about the proper handling of sets. What I refer to is the wide variance in their auditory powers.

"Loud speakers cause a lot of complaints, for instance. A man goes into the store, selects a set or a new loud-speaker, listens to it, likes the way it brings programs in, and orders it sent out. Installed in his home, with his wife, the children and possibly others listening in, it still brings music or speeches in to suit him, but doesn't please the others. Possibly Feeble Aunt Milly can't hear very well. Maybe his wife, a discriminating music lover, misses all the low notes. She, of course, blames it on the loudspeaker or the set.

"Many people complain of the lack of low notes, entirely overlooking the possibility that perhaps their ears are not sensitive to these low notes until a certain amplitude is reached, which amplitude is ofttimes not available in actual reception."

The "trouble man" went on to explain how other individual limitations affected enjoyment of sets and frequently resulted in complaints. All of these complaints are in this particular shop, given immediate and thorough attention, as the proprietor has built up his exclusive trade on the basis of "complete satisfaction with the set as long as you have it guaranteed."

Reverting to the matter of the loudspeaker, the "trouble man" further explained:

"The ear is a very poor, final judge of the performance of a loud speaker. It is lacking where amplitude is concerned, and it varies in receptivity according to individual fancy, that is, it is a highly nervous organ. In other words, the ear is prejudiced against certain sounds before it hears them. Undoubtedly the human ear is more responsive to certain audio frequencies than to others."

In face-to-face conversation we can anticipate words and phrases, all of which aids us in comprehending what is said. Over the air we must trust our ears alone—organs which are far from infallible.

It is charged by the state that Velma was the "life of the party," although Velma herself denied that in her interview with this correspondent. Velma did play and sing—such songs as "Missing You Dear" and "I'm Tired and Lonely for Home."

Velma stayed all that night at Miss Young's home and was arrested the next day. In the statement obtained Sunday by the sheriff from Miss Young, the Cleveland stenographer said she and Velma on several occasions motored to Perry on-the-lake and enjoyed themselves swimming. She said Velma was greatly attached to her.

For the first time, the sheriff today disclosed in detail how he obtained the murder confession from Velma and his deductions as the result of close observation of Velma for weeks in the county jail.

"The day of the killing she and her husband had been to Painesville shopping. They got home to Perry about 5:30. The evening paper had just been delivered. West parked the car out in front, took the paper off the porch and went upstairs to the bedroom to read it.

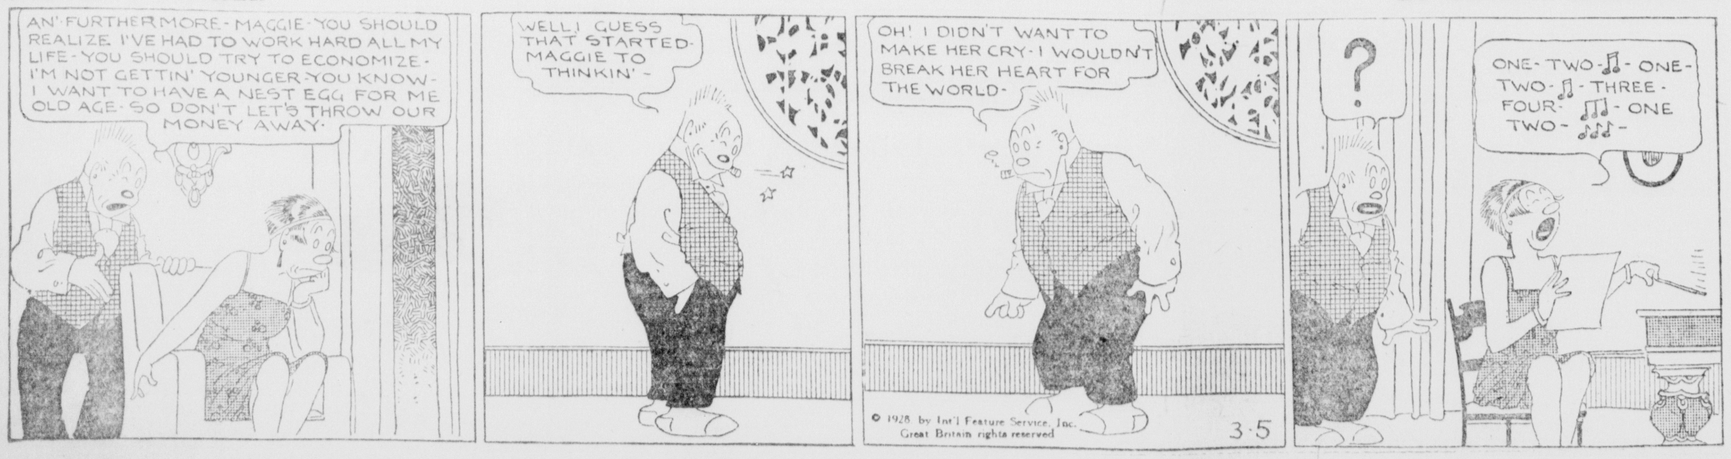

"Velma wasn't in any too good humor. Her husband had refused to drive her to Cleveland so she could attend the bridge party. She followed him up to the bedroom. I believe that at this point she asked him for the keys to the car and he refused. This enraged her and she picked up the hammer, which she had been using earlier in the day to fix a curtain, and struck him on the head. He tried to rise. She struck him again, and again—six times or more. He rose to a half crouching position on four or five occasions. Finally he fell on his face. She took a pillow slip and put it over his head. Then she smashed several other blows on his forehead. She reached into his pocket and pulled forth a bandana handkerchief and the keys for the car.

"When I looked at the body next morning the handkerchief had slipped down around his chin. She evidently had tried to gag him. He may have been moaning.

"She took a finger nail clipper and snipped off some twine. I found a piece of hemp on the clipper. She tied his hands and feet with the twine and left him, face down, on the floor. She went to the pump in the kitchen and washed her hands. She took off her bloody clothes and burned them in the furnace.

"Velma then went out to where the car was parked, unlocked it and drove to the home of Miss Moore."

While nations quarrel over the status of the submarine, the movies are preparing to take the lid off the sea-boats so that the public may know how they "tick." Dana Burnet, noted short story writer, arrived in Hollywood recently to develop a photoplay of the daring men who gamble their lives below the sea surface.

Burnet comes direct from the Navy sub base at New London, Connecticut where he "dove" in sister-ships of the ill-fated S-4.

Samuel Goldwyn, pioneer film producer, who is to make the story, said:

"The submarine is on trial before the world. It is the best publicized and the least-known thing in world news.

"With every nation on the edge of serious decisions regarding submarines, I feel that the film industry owes the world a sincere effort of assistance in the solution of one of the most absorbing questions of the century. "The thought we have has been met with the interested sympathy of high naval officers. They have been handicapped by the ignorance and misconceptions of the public. They feel, with us, that the visual power of the films can clarify a problem which threatens another world discord, if decisions made are not just and fundamental." Ronald Colman has been chosen to personify the type of men who command America's submarines. Burnet is the latest well-known author to desert the magazines and the stage for the screen.

"I picked on submarines as the means of my first attempt to write direct for the screen because I feel it is a topic which belongs to the eyes first, to the printed page afterwards," said Burnet. "I could write thousands of words—and add nothing to what has already been said. I can do a picture and make folks actually feel what I felt when the sub I was in submerged, when, through a periscope, I saw ourselves pass but a short distance from a boat crossing our path.

"I want to write, not of horrors, but of bravery, not of disasters, but of achievement; not of isolated instances but the full career of the submarine. In other words, I feel the submarine is entitled to a full hearing."

SUIT TO MARSHAL LIENS FILED HERE; CHURCH TO BORROW

Suit to marshal liens and sell real estate has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Harry H. Darst against Moses L. and Mary W. Fred, The Peoples Building and Savings Co., Xenia, O.; J. Q. Finfrock, Samuel and Lewis Fred, D. and C. E. Bigger, George W. Warner, E. Rosenthall, J. Lizsak, Mary Coy, W. F. Bozinger, The Home Building and Development Co., Dayton, and G. D. Durnbaugh, doing business as Durnbaugh Coal and Supply Co.

Plaintiff asserts that he obtained a judgment May 9, 1923, against the defendants, Moses and Mary Fred, for $264.33, which remains unsatisfied.

Other defendants claim to have liens mortgaged on property owned by the Freds, according to the petition.

Plaintiff asks that the defendants be required to set up their various claims, including mortgage, mechanics and judgment liens.

The court is asked to adjust the priorities of the liens of the plaintiff and defendant, authorize sale of the real estate and distribute the proceeds among the claimants according to their respective priorities. Marcus Shoup is attorney for the plaintiff.

CLEVELAND FIRM SUES

The Electric Paint and Varnish Co., Cleveland, O., has brought suit in Common Pleas Court against George A. Martindale, alleging $139 is due for merchandise sold and delivered to the plaintiff. Miller and Fisher are attorneys for the plaintiff.

CHURCH TO BORROW MONEY

The Nazarene Church, this city, has been granted authority in Common Pleas Court to borrow $6,500 with 7 per cent interest, payable semi-annually, and to secure payment by a first mortgage on real estate owned by the church.

NAMED ADMINISTRATOR

William S. Rogers has been appointed administrator of the estate of Sarah E. Harris, late of the city of Xenia, with bond of $1,000 in Probate Court.

STOCK SALE CONFIRMED

Sale of twenty shares of preferred stock in The Milford Pink Victoria White Granite Co., to Helen Smith for $400 has been approved in Probate Court. The stock belonged to the estate of Frank Smith, deceased, and was sold on application of the administrator of the estate.

DEATH CLAIMS MISS CARRIE E. STEWART

Miss Carrie E. Stewart, 67, passed away last Thursday at a hospital in the southern part of the state. Funeral services conducted by Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, were held at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. B. Riff, Cedarville, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Stewart leaves two sisters, Mrs. Rife, Cedarville and Mrs. Anna Morton, Xenia and one brother, J. MacStewart, Cincinnati. She also has a number of relatives and friends in Xenia who will be sorry to learn of her death.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

I Have Said in My Heart

As Told by Annabelle Lee
To IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

JUST A BIT CONTRARY

"I wonder if every young person has the same feelings on this subject as I," said Annabelle Lee, "or if I am a little different, a little more stubborn than other girls of my own age and environment.

"I hate to be commanded to do something. I will do anything for anyone who asks it as a favor, but to have someone say 'do thus or so' is like shaking a red flag at the proverbial bull.

"You know, Mrs. Gibson, that I have the dearest little mother in the world, but she never asks me to do anything for her with what I call a 'pretty please,' although she expects me to thank her profusely when she does for me what I have asked.

"Come and set the table she calls from the kitchen. When she says this she expects me to drop everything I am doing at the time and start for the dining-room with the regularity and dispatch of a drill sergeant at command of his higher officer. I may be in the middle of a most interesting conversation with Dad, a conversation that I hope will end in his giving me five dollars to buy one of the new felt hats, but whatever it is I must start almost before the echo of the last word dies away.

"I hate most awfully to feel that I am ever at anyone's beck and call. I always know that I have to set the table and I know I will do it before Mother has the food ready. I always have done this since I was old enough to do so without breaking the dishes.

"Mother knows that but she never fails to call me in a most peremptory tone of voice long before there is any need of it being done. As it is I usually leave it much longer than I would if she had not issued her commands. Mother seems to think I would not, but she has never given me a chance to show her that I would. Do you think I am an unruly child, Mrs. Gibson?"

"Yes, dear," I answered.

"In the first place you, knowing that your mother is always impatient about the table being set, should go as soon as she goes to the kitchen and get it over as soon as she begins the meal. But having waited until she asks, it would be no more than the politeness you would give a stranger who asked of you a favor to do it immediately."

"WHY MEN ARE LOST" SUBJECT HEARD AT NAZARENE CHURCH

"Men are not lost because of environment or because of any inherent characteristic of constitution," said the Rev. W. G. Bennett Sunday night preaching to a splendid audience at the Church of the Nazarene on the subject, "Why Are Men Lost."

"Men are not lost because they have had no invitation to come to Jesus for He has said, 'Whosoever will may come'. But they are lost because they choose to follow the desires and inclination of the flesh about which the Bible says 'they that sow to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption'. But if we are saved, it is because we deliberately choose Jesus Christ as our Savior Whose coming into our hearts will produce holy character which is the only thing that will stand in the Day of Judgment."

Following the sermon, one person accepted the invitation to the altar for prayer.

Monday night, the Rev. Mr. Bennett will speak on the subject, "Divine Healing". The subject for Wednesday night will be, "The Second Coming of Jesus." There will be services each night this week at 7:30 except Saturday night.

The public is cordially invited to attend all the services of the church.

ELMER ST. JOHN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Friends and relatives have learned of the death of Elmer St. John, 50, which occurred at his home, 726 N. Main St., Dayton, O., Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

His illness dates back to the middle of last November, and he was confined to his bed five or six weeks with a complication of diseases. He was born in the Union neighborhood September 11, 1877, but had resided in Dayton twenty-three years. His wife, Mrs. Lestie L. St. John, survives with the following brothers and sisters: Otis St. John, near Xenia; P. E. St. John, Spring Valley; Mrs. Belle Anderson and Miss Jennie St. John, Xenia.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m., at the Riesinger Funeral Parlors, 1342 W. Third St., Dayton.

ANTIOCH PLAYERS PLEASE WITH BARRIE

"Dear Brutus," a satire on several modern fallacies, by Sir J. M. Barrie, was presented by a group of senior members of the Antioch Players before a large audience at the Yellow Springs Opera House Friday night.

The leading character role was taken by Alfred Hansen as "Loo," character in an English village in which the setting was laid. Chief roles were taken by Kendall Bassett as "Mr. Dearth" and Ruth Harker as "Alice Dearth."

The play was presented under the direction of Mrs. Charles W. Putnam, director of the Antioch Players. The stage setting by Ernest Morgan was especially effective.

MARCH IS DANGEROUS

Take Father John's Medicine To Ward Off Colds

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "last only till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, and the nerve tissues fed with wholesome and strength-giving food medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons. Father John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring. It strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful in treating colds and throat troubles. No weakening stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs. Adv.

SUIT TO MARSHAL LIENS FILED HERE; CHURCH TO BORROW

Suit to marshal liens and sell real estate has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Harry H. Darst against Moses L. and Mary W. Fred, The Peoples Building and Savings Co., Xenia, O.; J. Q. Fintrock, Samuel and Lewis Fred, D. and C. E. Bigger, George W. Warner, E. Rosenthall, J. Lizsak, Mary Coy, W. F. Bozinger, The Home Building and Development Co., Dayton, and G. D. Durnbaugh, doing business as Durnbaugh Coal and Supply Co.

Plaintiff asserts that he obtained a judgment May 9, 1923, against the defendants, Moses and Mary Fred, for $264.33, which remains unsatisfied.

Other defendants claim to have liens mortgaged on property owned by the Freds, according to the petition.

Plaintiff asks that the defendants be required to set up their various claims, including mortgage, mechanics and judgment liens.

The court is asked to adjust the priorities of the liens of the plaintiff and defendant, authorize sale of the real estate and distribute the proceeds among the claimants according to their respective priorities. Marcus Shoup is attorney for the plaintiff.

CLEVELAND FIRM SUES

The Electric Paint and Varnish Co., Cleveland, O., has brought suit in Common Pleas Court against George A. Martindale, alleging $120 is due for merchandise sold and delivered to the plaintiff. Miller and Turner are attorneys for the plaintiff.

CHURCH TO BORROW MONEY

The Nazarene Church, this city, has been granted authority in Common Pleas Court to borrow $5,000 with 7 per cent interest, payable semi-annually, and to secure payment by a first mortgage on real estate owned by the church.

NAMED ADMINISTRATOR

William S. Rogers has been appointed administrator of the estate of Sarah E. Harris, late of the city of Xenia, with bond of $1,000, in Probate Court.

STOCK SALE CONFIRMED

Sale of twenty shares of preferred stock in The Milford Pink Victoria White Granite Co., to Helen Smith for $400 has been approved in Probate Court. The stock belonged to the estate of Frank Smith, deceased, and was sold on application of the administrator of the estate.

DEATH CLAIMS MISS CARRIE E. STEWART

Miss Carrie E. Stewart, 67, passed away last Thursday at a hospital in the southern part of the state. Funeral services conducted by Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, were held at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. B. Riff, Cedarville, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Stewart leaves two sisters, Mrs. Rife, Cedarville and Mrs. Anna Morton, Xenia and one brother, J. MacStewart, Cincinnati. She also has a number of relatives and friends in Xenia who will be sorry to learn of her death.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

I Have Said in My Heart

As Told by Annabelle Lee To IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

JUST A BIT CONTRARY

"I wonder if every young person has the same feelings on this subject as I," said Annabelle Lee, "or if I am a little different, a little more stubborn than other girls of my own age and environment.

"I hate to be commanded to do something. I will do anything for anyone who asks it as a favor, but to have someone say 'do thus or so' is like shaking a red flag at the proverbial bull.

"You know, Mrs. Gibson, that I have the dearest little mother in the world, but she never asks me to do anything for her with what I call a 'pretty please,' although she expects me to thank her profusely when she does for me what I have asked.

"Come and set the table she calls from the kitchen. When she says this she expects me to drop everything I am doing at the time and start for the dining-room with the regularity and dispatch of a drill sergeant at command of his higher officer. I may be in the middle of a most interesting conversation with Dad, a conversation that I hope will end in his giving me five dollars to buy one of the new felt hats, but whatever it is I must start almost before the echo of the last word dies away.

"I hate most awfully to feel that I am ever at anyone's beck and call. I always know that I have to set the table and I know I will do it before Mother has the food ready. I always have done this since I was old enough to do so without breaking the dishes.

"Mother knows that but she never fails to call me in a most peremptory tone of voice long before there is any need of it being done. As it is I usually leave it much longer than I would if she had not issued her commands. Mother seems to think I would not, but she has never given me a chance to show her that I would. Do you think I am an unruly child, Mrs. Gibson?"

"Yes, dear," I answered.

"In the first place you, knowing that your mother is always impatient about the table being set, should go as soon as she goes to the kitchen and get it over as soon as she begins the meal. But having waited until she asks, it would be no more than the politeness you would give a stranger who asked of you a favor to do it immediately."

ELMER ST. JOHN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Friends and relatives have learned of the death of Elmer St. John, 50, which occurred at his home, 726 N. Main St., Dayton, O., Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

His illness dates back to the middle of last November, and he was confined to his bed five or six weeks with a complication of diseases. He was born in the Union neighborhood September 11, 1877, but had resided in Dayton twenty-three years. His wife, Mrs. Leslie L. St. John, survives with the following brothers and sisters: Otis St. John, near Xenia; P. E. St. John, Spring Valley; Mrs. Belle Anderson and Miss Jennie St. John, Xenia.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Riesinger Funeral Parlors, 1342 W. Third St., Dayton.

ANTIOCH PLAYERS PLEASE WITH BARRIE

"Dear Brutus," a satire on several modern fallacies, by Sir J. M. Barrie, was presented by a group of senior members of the Antioch Players before a large audience at the Yellow Springs Opera House Friday night.

The leading character role was taken by Alfred Hansen as "Loo," character in an English village in which the setting was laid. Chief roles were taken by Kendall Bassett as "Mr. Dearth" and Ruth Harker as "Alice Dearth."

The play was presented under the direction of Mrs. Charles W. Putnam, director of the Antioch Players. The stage setting by Ernest Morgan was especially effective.

"WHY MEN ARE LOST" SUBJECT HEARD AT NAZARENE CHURCH

"Men are not lost because of environment or because of any inherent characteristic of constitution," said the Rev. W. G. Bennett Sunday night preaching to a splendid audience at the Church of the Nazarene on the subject, "Why Are Men Lost."

"Men are not lost because they have had no invitation to come to Jesus for He has said, 'Whosoever will may come'. But they are lost because they choose to follow the desires and inclination of the flesh about which the Bible says 'they that sow to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption'. But if we are saved, it is because we deliberately choose Jesus Christ as our Savior Whose coming into our hearts will produce holy character which is the only thing that will stand in the Day of Judgment."

Following the sermon, one person accepted the invitation to the altar for prayer.

Monday night, the Rev. Mr. Bennett will speak on the subject, "Divine Healing". The subject for Wednesday night will be, "The Second Coming of Jesus." There will be services each night this week at 7:30 except Saturday night.

The public is cordially invited to attend all the services of the church.

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in four tablespoonfuls of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents. —Adv.

MARCH IS DANGEROUS

Take Father John's Medicine To Ward Off Colds

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "last only till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, and the nerve tissues fed with wholesome and strength-giving food medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons. Father John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring. It strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful in treating colds and throat troubles. No weakening stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs. Adv.

BOY SCOUT EXHIBIT IS HELD IN DAYTON

An elaborate exhibit of what Boy Scouts make, do and wear will arrive early this week on a special train from national Scout headquarters and will be on display Wednesday and Thursday at the Hotel Gibbons, 25 S. Ludlow St., Dayton, according to Deputy Scout Commissioner R. H. Kingsbury.

This exhibit, it is explained, received nation-wide comment as a result of being placed on display at Hot Springs last September.

A roll call of Dayton Scouts will be called at the big Court of Honor to be held at the N. C. R. school house, S. Main St., Dayton, at 3 p. m. next Sunday afternoon. Admittance to both events will be free. The entire Miami Valley is invited to attend each event.
